WASHINGTON, July 25.—James Glavis, general manager of the Chicago Tribune, was called today to a city of questions from Attorney General Haney, attorney for Senator Lorimer, about his testimony yesterday before the Senate committee, and when the cross-examination had not been concluded. The session was replete with sharp passages between attorney and witness.

In the early part of the session Glavis told the committee that George O. Glavis, recent arrest on a charge of embezzlement was at his (Keeley's) request, after Glavis had been authorized to buy lobbyist books, which Glavis claimed would show that lobbyists paid Lorimer 25 per cent of a sum of $2,000 in a fight made by the "fireproof" magazine of Chicago for the mail privilege.

Keeley said Glavis told him former Representative Tawney of Minnesota, for many years chairman of the House appropriations committee, was "mixed up in the deal."

Glavis wished to withdraw.

Glavis said the books showed that Congressman Tawney was mixed up in this "postoffice matter," said the witness. He also said that in the books showed that Lorimer had something to do with a liquor case.

The witness stated he telegraphed $500 to be paid Glavis for the books, and that Glavis acknowledged having purchased them, but later sent word he would like to withdraw from the arrangement and refund the advances Mr. Keeley would not assent.

"Why did you want the books?" asked the attorney.

"To turn over to this committee, if they were useful."

At adjournment Attorney Haney was directing Mr. Keeley's attention to vouchers submitted to show that the Tribune spent $20,000 investigating the White confession. The attorney called attention to the bills of E. O. Phillips and Charles T. Odell, reporters on the Tribune, who spent several hundred dollars in visiting members of the legislature.

"Did you know that Mike Link had been in an insane asylum before he was elected to the legislature?" asked Mr. Haney, when Mr. Link's name came up in this connection.

"I never heard until you uttered it just now."

"Here are the bills of John C. (Continued on Page Two.)

Liberals to Put Political Future, With Reciprocity, in Hands of Voters.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 25.—Premier Laurier and the Liberal government of Canada today decided to place their political future in the hands of the electorate of the Dominion. The result is to be decided almost entirely upon the reciprocity issue.

A general election will be called within two months and on the outcome which will be governed largely by the attitude of the people on reciprocity, will depend the continued political ascendancy of the Liberal party.

If the Liberals are returned to power the Fielding-Knox agreement will be passed and put in effect before Christmas. If the Conservatives win Mr. Borden, present leader of the movement, will become prime minister and the reciprocity measure will be dead.

These concrete lines were drawn at caucuses of both parties tonight. The Conservatives decided that obstruction would be continued until the government dropped the reciprocity measures. The Liberals then met and determined to press the measure until the people thoroughly understood that the minority in parliament was assuming the right of the majority to govern and that an election must be held to discipline them.

Parliament probably will be dissolved within two weeks and an election date be fixed as soon as voters lists can be prepared. Probably the last week of September or the first week of October will be selected.

TELLURIDE MINER KILLED

TELLURIDE, July 25.—William Buttle, a white boss in the Smuggler Union mine, was killed today in a cave in at the mine. Buttle, who was 35 years old, leaves a wife and child at Cornwell, England. So far as is known, he had no relatives in this country.

INSURANCE MAN DROPS DEAD

TELLURIDE, Colo., July 25.—F. Nigden, manager of the western district of the Capital Life Insurance company, dropped dead early this morning in the lobby of a hotel here. He came here Sunday on business for the company.

STATE DEPT. DUNS IN

DENVER, July 25.—It was announced today that the three Republican members of the state board of health, Doctors L. E. Leinen and J. N. Hall of Denver and Dr. V. R. Pennoch of Louisa, resigned from the board last Friday. Dissatisfaction over their inability to secure patronage for Republicans is given as the reason. To this the Democratic majority reply that it was impossible for Democrats to get any of the patronage two years ago, when Republicans were in control of the board, and that "turn about is fair play."

W. MAN A JAKE

EL PASO, Tex., July 25.—News reached here tonight of the murder of Miss Emma Brown, formerly of Austin, Tex., who had taken up a homestead near Saratoga, in Reeves county, Tex. A 18-year-old Mexican boy named Martinez is under arrest, and is said to have confessed to the murder.

On Saturday last Miss Brown was accosted by a stranger whom she met near her ranch house, and when she spurned his advances, the stranger fired a bullet into her body. As she lay prone, he stabbed her several times and then broke her neck with a blow from a club.

The following day ranchmen discovered Miss Brown's body and started in pursuit of her slayer.

Martinez was taken to Pecos but was spirited out of town to Midland when it became known that a mob was forming to lynch him. After he had been placed in jail at Midland, it was reported that Mexican citizens of Reeves county are planning to get possession of Martinez and burn him at the stake.

COLORADO K. P. MEETING

PUEBLO, Colo., July 25.—The Colorado branch of the colored Knights of Pythias commenced its annual convention here today. Sessions will be continued for three days.

BUT MAN SAYS HE KNOWS HE IS MURDERER.

Mystery of Crime of Which Bridal Couple Were Victims Is Solved.

OLYMPIA, Wash., July 25.—J. H. Wilson, foreman of a section crew at Rainier, confessed today to Prosecuting Attorney John M. Wilson and Sheriff Gaston that he killed Archie Coble and his wife on the night of July 10. Coble and his bride were found dead in bed in their little home at Rainier two weeks ago.

While confessing the crimes, Wilson declared he had no recollection of it, alleging that on the night of the murder he was mentally irresponsible.

When John Mulqueen, an aged lunatic, was arrested for the crime, Wilson tried to stir up a movement to lynch him. Later he went out of his way to throw suspicion on Swan Peterson, a 50-year-old man who had worked in his section gang for a day or two.

"There is no doubt in my mind that I killed Archie Coble and his wife," Wilson confessed to the prosecutor today, "but I have no memory of going to their home that night."

Two weeks before he had serious trouble with his wife he said. A week later he told the prosecutor "I was walking along the railroad track when I heard a voice say 'don't you know somebody?' The words kept preying on my mind."

The night before the Coble killing I was afraid to sleep in the section house, lest I should murder some of the men there, so I slept in the tent that night. I kept worrying all the next day—Monday. As soon as I heard they had found the bodies I was afraid that I had done it."

"When I awakened this morning after the murder there was blood in my tent, but I thought I had probably had a nose bleed."

Wilson is 35 years old and a Canadian by birth.

Moroccan Situation Acute; British Naval Plans Are Changed

LONDON, July 25.—That the Moroccan difficulty has become acute is indicated on the sudden order issued by the admiralty today, canceling the projected visit of the Atlantic fleet to Norway.

It also is reported that the crews of several ships of the home fleet have been ordered to hold themselves for emergency service.

According to advices from Berlin, negotiations between France and Germany were proceeding smoothly until Chancellor Lloyd George's speech on July 21, which was interpreted as a warning to Germany in the present Moroccan controversy.

BERLIN, July 25.—There are strong evidences in the German press of increasing nervousness over the Moroccan situation. Dispatches from various points record pessimistic rumors, while reports from London regarding the British attitude call forth sharp comment.

PIONEER MINER DIES

Cripple Creek, July 25.—George Gladden, aged 70, a pioneer of Colorado, died this morning of apoplexy. Gladden was born in Missouri, served with the First Colorado Infantry in the civil war and was well known in every mining camp of the state. He was in Leadville in '88, and was one of the first mining men to flock to Cripple Creek. He leaves a wife and daughter residents of this city. The Cripple Creek Pioneers association will attend the funeral service.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Man Goes Over Cataract in Barrel and Survives Trip.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 25.—Bobby Leach, 49 years old, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, this afternoon went over the Horseshoe Falls in a barrel and still lives.

Though he was severely battered and bruised in the drop of 152 feet over the brink of the cataract, he sustained only superficial injuries and tonight is able to be about his house.

This is the second time in the history of the river that a cataract has been successfully navigated.

Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor of this city made the trip in a barrel on October 24, 1901, and came out alive.

Harassed by the police on both sides of the river Leach was forced this afternoon to make his start from La Salle, two miles and a half above the cataract on the United States side.

Two rivermen carried him in a launch to Navy Island, where everything was made shipshape, and Leach was placed in the barrel, a steel affair, 11 feet long with ends of wood. Leach was hung in a canvas hammock. The barrel with its passenger was cast adrift just off the mouth of Shipwreck creek, hardly a mile above the brink of the horseshoe at 2 o'clock. Within 200 yards of the brink the barrel struck hard against a rock and a large section of the wooden end was broken off. As the barrel reached the first it swung straight and went plunging down in the abyss on its long axis. Hardly 30 seconds elapsed until it was seen careening in the spume below the cataract. A swimmer tied a rope to one of the handles of the barrel and it was towed ashore. Leach was bleeding and appeared in a bad way, but once out of the barrel he raised himself and waved to the crowds that lined the banks.

He was exhausted and it was necessary to apply oxygen to revive him. It was at first thought that his leg was broken but examination showed that it was merely sprained.

LEASES STATE LAND IN MESA VERDE OIL FIELDS

DENVER, July 25.—The state land board today formally granted a lease of 2,500 acres of state land in the Mesa Verde oil fields to Frederick P. Davy of Cortez. The granting of the lease has been the cause of considerable controversy between members of the board, as well as the board itself and Davy. Davy finally agreed to accept alternate 40-acre tracts. He first tried to secure the land in one block.

Davy will pay the state a small annual rental and royalty of 10 per cent of the gross production if oil is found. The board today adopted a resolution suggested to it by Governor Shafroth, to the effect that no more leases will be granted without the unanimous consent of the three members of the board, and that not more than 640 acres will be sold to any one person.

WRIGHT AIR MACHINES AT FREIGHT DEPOT.

"Pike" and "Skylark" Ready for Sensational Flights.
Aviators Due Soon.

The two Wright aeroplanes, "The Pike" and "The Skylark," in which aviators L. P. Parmelee and Clifford Turpin will make their sensational flights at Roswell park next Wednesday and Thursday arrived in Colorado Springs last night. The machines are specially fitted for the purpose of making and putting the turbines together will be done by the two star aviators and their assistants who are expected to arrive here before the end of the week. The car will be unloaded at a point as convenient as possible to the aviation field, and the machines will be put together on the spot where the start will be made, in front of the grandstand.

Preparing for Meet.

Preparations for the accommodation of 10,000 people at Roswell park on the two days of the big aviation meet are being made by the committee in charge, of which L. P. Lawton is chairman, and by Monday every detail will be in shape so that the crowds will be handled without the slightest hitch. The big grandstand, with a seating capacity of 10,000, has been thoroughly overhauled, new seats and boxes have been constructed, turnstiles have been installed and a great deal of work has been done in leveling the ground and having everything shipshape for the aviators and those who will take part in the widest show. For the protection of the public and to avoid all possibility of accidents, the space in front of the grandstand where the widest shows will be held has been fenced off with about 1,000 feet of wire netting so that it will be impossible for anyone to intrude on the space allotted to the rough riders, bicyclists, broncho busters and truck equestrians. The ground has been inspected by R. F. Ireland, manager of the widest show, and he has expressed complete satisfaction with the arrangements.

"The Pike."

"The Pike," which is the new Wright aeroplane in which Parmelee is to make some sensational flights in an effort to encircle Pikes Peak at an altitude that will break the record, is claimed by the Wrights to be a great improvement over the old type. It embodies all the latest wrinkles in aeroplane construction, which the Wrights and other experts have found by experience to be beneficial, and the aviators expect that some surprises will be sprung on the aviation world when the new machine is given its stellar demonstration and begins its flitting with the grim old Pike, that, to the imaginative, seems to frown down in solitary state upon the frivolities of the modern world.

It will break the altitude record at 10,000 feet, which the new biplane, if it does not succeed in flying over the summit of the Peak, is the expectation of the bird-men.

The New Machine.

The new machine is claimed by the Wrights to be the smallest, fastest and most powerful ever turned from their shops. It is capable of standing a far greater tension than any ever turned out before, and on this account its wings can be warped to such a degree that it can make turns in one-third the angle required by machines of the old type. The advantage of this to the aviator in a shifty breeze can be readily realized, even by the uninitiated.

Regular Republicans Catch Insurgents Napping and Pass Resolution.

The Nebraska Republican convention here today gave President Taft and his administration a strong indorsement and effectively blocked all efforts of a small band of insurgent delegates to arouse sentiment for Senator Robert M. La Follette as a presidential candidate. The insurgents lacked a leader and were outgeneraled by Victor Rosewater and his delegation from Omaha.

Before the insurgents could introduce resolutions from the floor, the regulars had rushed through a motion providing that all resolutions be referred to a committee which was given power to draw up a final report.

Chairman A. W. Jeffers of Omaha then named a committee of seven of whom five were strong friends of Mr. Taft and of which Mr. Rosewater was made chairman.

From this point the possibilities of a fight on the floor over the indorsement of Mr. Taft went glimmering.

Insurgents Lose Out.

Despite their early announcement that they would not assent to a Taft indorsement on any condition, the insurgents failed to make even a show of a fight or objection when the platform resolution was finally presented.

The resolution went through with a whoop by a rising vote during which several of the insurgents were discovered on their feet.

An attempt to have the convention instruct the resolutions committee to refrain from indorsing any candidates met with summary treatment.

This was as far as the insurgents could get with their fight to prevent a Taft indorsement. Out of the total of 1,000 votes in the convention it was said by regular leaders that the insurgents could not muster a following of more than 150.

The machine has been specially constructed for work in high altitudes, and, as it will have to rise only about 5,000 feet from its starting point here in order to break the high record, it is easily conceivable that the feat will be accomplished. The record now stands at about 11,000 feet, and the difference between reaching that height from sea level and a starting point over 5,000 feet high, is greatly in favor of the Wrights. In fact, a rise of about 8,000 feet from the starting point will carry the aviator over the Peak, and this will no doubt be the prime ambition of the bird-men. The opportunity may never again present itself in their careers, and they are bound to make the most of the occasion, as worldwide fame will be the prize of the men who accomplish the feat of conquering the famous mountain peak.

State Chairman William Husemiller, of Lindwood, called the convention to order at 12:30 o'clock. He introduced A. W. Jeffers of Omaha, who took the gavel as temporary chairman. Mr. Jeffers made an earnest plea for harmony. Said he:

My desire is the future success and welfare of the Republican party in the state and in the nation, and it is my judgment that that future success depends, in a large measure, upon our stating in a positive manner, upon approval and approbation of the works of the Republicans in national state affairs without regard to any of the so-called degrees of Republicanism.

COAL MINING COMMISSION FOR ALASKA SUGGESTED

SEATTLE, Wash., July 25.—Petitions to President Taft and Congress, praying for the establishment of an Alaskan coal mining commission, for the purpose of operating public coal lands in the territory, were put into circulation here today.

STEEL MANUFACTURER SIMPLY SET SCALE AND OTHERS RESPECTED IT.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—That through oral agreements steel manufacturers now keep up prices and avoid "destructive competition," just as effectively as they did under the iron-clad contract of the American Steel Plate association from 1900 to 1904 was practically admitted today by A. F. Huston, president of the Lukens Iron and steel company, before the House "steel trust" investigating committee.

The witness said that from time to time one manufacturer will say to another, "My price will be so and so until further notice," but that there is no general agreement.

"There is a feeling among the companies, however," he said, "that nothing should be done to injure a fellow company without giving notice."

Mr. Huston described the Steel Plate association, which he said was organized to obtain reasonable prices. The association not only fixed prices, he said, but allotted a certain proportion of production to each of its 11 constituent companies.

Uneasiness Caused Abandonment.

The witness said the organization was abandoned in 1904 because there was so much restlessness and uneasiness about its legality.

Mr. Huston identified a printed copy of the original agreement all copies of which were supposed to have been burned in 1900 under his direction, because it was "not in proper form," and testified that the association operated from 1900 to 1904 under a similar agreement typewritten and uncopied.

Representatives Beall of Texas, Linton of New York, and Bartlett of Georgia, all Democrats, plied the witness with questions seeking to establish that the steel companies, through "Gary dinners" and other conferences since 1904 have been accomplishing the purpose formerly carried out by the written agreement.

Mr. Huston insisted at first that prices were not discussed at the Gary dinners, but upon having parts of a record of speeches delivered at one of the dinners read to him, he qualified the statement by saying prices were discussed in a general way.

Agreement a Life Saver.

Mr. Huston said that in forming the association, Charles M. Schwab represented the Carnegie Steel company; Willis L. King, the Jones and Laughlin company; Thomas J. Buffington, the Illinois Steel company, and other concerns represented the Lukens firm, Crucible Steel company of America, the Otis Steel company, Tidewater Steel company, Worth Bros. company, Central Iron and Steel company, American Steel and Wire company and the Glasgow Iron company.

He further said that under the agreement his firm was to have 1.5 per cent of the total output.

"Where did you see this agreement before?" asked Representative Beall of Texas, displaying a copy now on the official record of the inquiry.

"When it came from the printer," "Who sent it to the printer?" "I did."

Mr. Huston said his company participated in the discussions leading up to the agreement, and the organization of the association. He said the purpose "was to try to avoid destructive competition."

"Prior to that time," he explained, "we had a period of destructive competition. I shall never forget that time—common labor was at 90 cents to $1 a day, the price of steel was $10 a ton, a pound of steel was selling for the value of the ore in the ground was not taken into consideration at all. The companies figured on the cost of getting the ore out only and manufacturing it. That agreement was a life-saving measure."

For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation. While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it acts as a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and everywhere else, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. (Continued From Page One.)

O'Laughlin, began Mr. Haney next. He is former assistant secretary of state and I suppose a highly paid man isn't he?"

"He is your representative in Washington and for his high priced work he gets a high price."

O'Laughlin's Bill, $1,131.

Mr. O'Laughlin's bill amounted to $1,131, of which Mr. Keeley said more than $500 was for stenographic work in the Lorimer case.

Senator Fletcher asked if any bill from M. A. Coan was included in the list. When Mr. Keeley said there was not, Mr. Haney asked if Mr. Coan who went around gathering up what he called information had been employed by Mr. Keeley on the case. The witness said he had not been employed. Other remarks led Attorney in favor of Canadian reciprocity, in favor of the policy of Taft, the very man whom they had previously denounced and tried to destroy in the estimation of his fellow countrymen.

The Republican party must solve the relations that are to exist between the nations of the western hemisphere. There is no one else to do it, though they may help. International questions are big questions and call for statesmanship as broad as are the interests of this great nation. The statesmanship of our country in its relations with other countries of the world should never be measured by the interests of a province, a city, a state, or a section, but by the interests of the nation as a whole, "the union one and inseparable."

able to protest against such references to Mr. Coan.

"I don't know about that," declared Mr. Haney. "I may summon him here to show what kind of a man was employed by the Helm committee to gather evidence."

Mr. Haney said Coan had sought employment by the present Lorimer committee and when he failed talked about the members.

Mr. Haney asked Mr. Keeley when he had his second talk with Mr. Kohlbasst in regard to the Funk-Hines conversation at the Union League club in Chicago, in which a Lorimer election fund was mentioned.

"I have no distinct recollection," was the response.

"Well let us have your indistinct recollection."

Could Not Recall Conversation.

Mr. Keeley replied it probably was a month later but he could not recall what was said. One thing he had in mind during the conversation he said, was what made the 53 Democrats vote for Lorimer.

Mr. Keeley gave the White confession as his authority for an editorial about bribery in the legislature.

"And that has been discredited in every court in which White has appeared," suggested Mr. Haney.

"There have been acquittals or nole pressing of cases."

"The slate has been cleaned except up in the offices of the Chicago Tribune."

"Probably."

"Is that the only unclear thing up there?"

"Well I don't know. You have been up there."

Tawney Makes Statement.

WINONA, Minn., July 25.—Discussing the Lorimer case, Mr. Tawney said: "Connecting my name with this matter was purely gratuitous on the part of Mr. Keeley or Mr. Glavis, and without any facts whatever to justify it, nor was I ever connected in any way with any legislative or other position in which Mr. Lorimer was interested except in the oleomargarine fight, when he was opposing the enactment of the oleomargarine law which I was advocating and the passage of which I finally secured.

"If the fireproof magazines of Chicago sought any mail privileges through the influence of any committee or any member of any committee of the House of Representatives, it would have been through the committee on postoffices and postroads, or its members, and not through the committee on postoffices and postroads that handles the appropriations for the postal service, and not the committee on appropriations."

SIXTY RIVER BOATMEN ARE IN CHOLERA NET

NEW YORK, July 25.—Activities were directed from many angles today in the skirmish against the invasion of Asiatic cholera. They include partial confirmation of the suspicion that the case at the Bellevue hospital is really cholera; the detention and disinfection of a Hudson river steamer, the placing of its crew under observation and the apparently mistaken suspicion of a British vessel arriving from Mexico.

The case New York is most keenly watching is that of Edgar H. Hagan, an orderly at Bellevue hospital in the city, who was in attendance upon the Spanish sailor, Manuel Bermudez, when the latter's case was diagnosed as cholera.

When it was learned today that Bermudez had worked on the Hudson river steamer Kennebec, of the Manhattan line, the boat was detained for a thorough disinfection, and the 60-odd members of the crew were placed under observation.

TO BUILD BY CONTRACT

According to Director E. E. Murphy of the Modern Woodmen of America, the order will build its main administration building at the sanatorium by contract work. Architects McLaren and Thomas have been instructed to advertise for bids in the near future. The building is to be of reinforced concrete and will cost approximately $150,000. On account of the kind of construction, it would be necessary for the owners to buy tools and special machinery that would be useless after completion. For this reason it was considered cheaper to contract for the work.

Owners From Seven States. French Noblemen Writes Enthusiastically Concerning Big Meet Here.

The spirit of pride that all tourists have for their native states is responsible for the interest taken by visitors from all the country in the international automobile contest. The Colorado Springs division of the contest, which is being held at the Pikes Peak Hotel, is the most important of the series. The committee in charge of the contest is the Pikes Peak Automobile Club. The contest is being held at the Pikes Peak Hotel, which is the most important of the series. Bird-men from all parts of the United States and Europe are taking a keen interest in the aviation flights to be made by the Wright aviators, P. O. Farmalee and Clifford Turpin. In this district next week, and the carnival executive committee is receiving letters from many aviation men, intimating that they will be here in person or have representatives on the field to watch and report on wrinkles in the flying game that they all expect Wright is holding up his sleeve. The most remarkable of these letters comes from Count Felix Dubois, a noted aviator of Paris, who seems to feel that Wright has stolen a march on him in being the first bird-man to attempt the task of conquering Pikes Peak, or at least of circling it at a record-breaking height. Dubois says that if Wright encircles Pikes Peak at a record height, he will at once challenge him to a contest with one machine each for a flight over the summit.

Count Dubois' Letter.

"It is now two years since I was in Colorado Springs and went to the summit of Pikes Peak," writes Dubois, "and at that time I promised myself that I would be the first man to fly over the top and leave an imperishable name behind. Now I see that Monsieur Wright is to forestall me in my ambition, but I believe that the time has come for this great achievement, and that it will remain for France to demonstrate its superiority of men and machines. If Mr. Wright, with his new aeroplane, can make the circle of the Peak at more than 11,000 feet, I will agree to enter with him one machine, for a tournament to see who shall fly over the summit. I accord Monsieur Wright my most profound respect and best wishes for the success of his efforts, but I feel assured it will remain for a Frenchman to add to the glory of his country by conquering the famous Peak as Napoleon conquered the Alps. I will await with great emotion the result of the flights to be held in your city, and wish the aviator of Monsieur Wright the bon voyage."

Favors Monoplane.

Dubois is a champion of the monoplane as opposed to the biplane type of machine, and has an enviable reputation in his native country as one of the few among the nobility of the republic who have persistently ventured their lives in the active pursuit of the great Twentieth Century sport. It was since his visit to this city two years ago that the count entered the aviation game, and it is said that his ambition in this line was fired by the inspiration he received on the summit of Pikes Peak when the idea of making a flight over the giant uplift came to his imagination. Since his return to France he has been a persistent follower of the sport, and is now recognized as an expert and one of its most aristocratic patrons.

Santa Fe Wants Street Car Service Improved

Within the next few days officials of the Santa Fe railroad expect to take up with the Chamber of Commerce the question of improving the street car service on East Pikes Peak avenue from Nevada avenue to the Santa Fe depot.

It is claimed by the railroad that the car which is now operated between the two points does not run after 10:30 at night, which is before the arrival of one of its through trains from the east. It is said that passengers are forced to walk to Wabash avenue for a car, and then walk up town. It is pointed out that the long waits for the one car from Nevada avenue to the depot are inconvenient, not only for tourists but for residents as well, and it is proposed to take up the matter with the Chamber of Commerce, and, if possible, interest that body in an effort to have the street car service improved.

A MOTHER'S DUTY

It is the duty of every expectant mother to prepare her system for the coming of her little one; to avoid as far as possible the suffering of such occasions, and endeavor to pass through the crisis with her health and strength unimpaired. This she may do through the use of Mother's Friend, a remedy that has been so long in use, and accomplished so much good, that it is in no sense an experiment, but a preparation which always produces the best results. It is for external application and so penetrating in its nature as to thoroughly lubricate every muscle, nerve and tendon involved during the period before baby comes. It aids nature by expanding the skin and tissues, relieves tenderness and soreness, and perfectly prepares the system for natural and safe motherhood. Mother's Friend has been used and endorsed by thousands of mothers, and its use will prove a comfort and a benefit to any woman in need of such a remedy. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers, which contains much valuable information.

MISS DAVIDSON'S LECTURES

The second day of teachers normal institute opened at the High School building yesterday with 150 teachers from the five counties in the Fifth Normal district in attendance. Before the close of the day's session the number had reached 185, and by the end of the week it is thought that 250 will be here receiving instruction. Aside from the regular school work yesterday, Dr. M. V. O'Shea delivered two excellent lectures. The subject of the first was "Attention," and the second, "Dynamics in Education."

Besides Dr. O'Shea, Prof. Roger H. Motten and Dr. J. V. Breitwieser of Colorado College gave talks during the day. School subjects of immediate interest and benefit to the young teachers were selected in order to hold their attention during the first few days of the institute. The work of Miss Eleanor Davidson of Denver is especially unique and interesting. She instructs the teachers how to tell stories to children in a captivating and attention-holding manner. As a method of teaching this is considered one of the best. In addition to the story-telling instruction, Miss Davidson has charge of a class in "folk dancing." Two pianos have been loaned by the Knight-Campbell company, and classes for each day

Better than pure

The poorest grade of pepper or spices on the market may be sold, without adulteration, as pure under the Pure Food and Drugs act. When we take the very finest grades of spices that are grown, clean them, remove all the bran, fibre, exhaust berries, shells, etc., leaving only the cream of the spice is it any wonder that we call them better than pure? When the extreme strength and goodness of these spices are taken into consideration and the generous packages sold for a low price can you afford to use any other than better than pure spices?

Scientific Investigation of the Effect of High Altitude on the Blood of Human Beings

Scientific investigation of the effect of high altitude on the blood of human beings is still in progress on the summit of Pikes Peak, and will be continued for the next month by Drs. J. A. Haldane and Gordon Douglas of Oxford University, Dr. Yandell Henderson of Yale, and Dr. E. C. Schneider of Colorado College.

While the report of the scientists, which will be filed with the Royal Society of England, will be of great interest among medical men all over the world, and will give Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak region generally an enormous amount of favorable advertising, it is not thought that the investigation will result in new curative methods.

The physicians have corroborated the report on the work of Dr. Henry W. Hoagland of this city, who eight years ago, after exhaustive tests on the top of the Peak, both with human beings and rabbits, found conclusively that the red corpuscles of the blood in all cases are very greatly increased by high altitude. This report, which was compiled by Dr. W. A. Campbell, also of Colorado Springs, was reprinted practically in every medical journal in the world, and caused a great sensation. Generally speaking, an increase in red corpuscles strengthens and purifies the blood, resulting in better all-around health, and the amount of favorable publicity received by this region in consequence of the tests cannot be overestimated.

PARISIAN BUTTERFLY ACT COMING

Wonderful Aerial Spectacle to Be Presented Here With Circus.

The "Human Butterfly" act, the wonderful French aerial spectacle, which originated in Paris last winter, is to be seen in Colorado Springs Tuesday, August 8, with the Adam Forepaugh-Sells Brothers' circus. It is the most beautiful and the most daring high-alt performance ever seen in America. It cost the management of the circus more money than was ever before paid for a single act.

The Ty-Bell sisters, the three most beautiful women before the public, are the originators of the act. They are the ones who are presenting it in this country. It is in every way different from aerial acts seen in the past. The three girls are suspended from the dome of the tent by means of thread-like cords of steel. To these they cling merely by the use of their teeth. Through the medium of invisible mechanism above they are made to circle, dart and fly through space with the grace and the skill of birds, while a battery of calcium and electric spotlights play upon their long silken robes and wings of white spun glass with streams of fantastic colors.

There is ethereal beauty and sublime splendor to the act that is entrancing to beholders. The great danger and risk of life that the performance involves give it a thrilling and dramatic interest that is intense. The element of suspense is present throughout the entire act. It is a thriller of the most pronounced kind, which does not need any gruesome and ugly incline structure to give it effect. It is dangerous enough to satisfy the most morbid minded, while its spectacular beauty never fails to delight the fancy of the most delicate woman.

Prominent among other aerialists are the famous Alpine troupe, the Orlean sisters, the Richards sisters, the two Franks, Fred Lasere, the La Fayette family, the Minerva sisters, the three Alvos, the Elliott family, the Flying Runions, the Eight Jennens, and the famous Taylor-Huttons. There are many more on the list. Each one of them a picked star performer. The same case has been exercised in the selection of the acrobats, the gymnasts, the jugglers, the equestrians, and the hippodrome contestants.

The trained animals are a big feature. There are many troupes of them, and all are of the best. The menagerie is a complete collection of the rarest of the world's strange animals and the ferocious parades are a marvel of extravagance and strangeness.

This year's most pronounced thriller is a double-somersaulting automobile flight through the air, performed by a mere girl. The act reaches the utter limit of daring. It is a genuine double-somersaulting act, not to be confounded with the imitations of the past.

Robinson, Mrs. B. Naylor and Miss Naylor, Mrs. and Miss Northrup, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Talbot, Mrs. E. M. Guinness, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Frazier, Mr. With, Mr. H. Negagen, Mrs. C. O. Richmond.

Following are recent arrivals at the Navajo hotel: T. C. Wheeler, Corry, Pa.; E. E. Sheppard, Arwood, Ark.; Mrs. C. C. Kulborn, Mrs. C. H. Partidge, Ord, Neb.; Gertrude Nelson, Omaha; Anna Dahl, Minnie Dahl, Ogalala, Neb.; Mrs. C. C. Parkman, Miss Maria Parkman, Eudra, Neb.; Mrs. Will Gladis, Mrs. Lloyd Gladis, Miss Evelyn Holmsmith, Miss Laura Jiggett, Bolton, Miss.

R. E. L. Giles had as guests on an automobile tour and concert a number of the delegates to the real estate convention which met in Denver recently. Those present were: Messrs. G. G. Miles and Eugene Chambliss, Montgomery, Ala.; J. P. Shields and George Brace, Minneapolis, St. A. Bond, Kansas City; L. C. Roman, Little Rock, Ark.; and Zeb P. Jackson, Muskogee, Okla.

What the Press Agents Say

TWO VAUDEVILLE SHOWS FOR SINGLE ADMISSION

The Majestic theater this week is offering two shows for one admission, and both of them are full of entertaining features. In the first place there is the Majestic company, a bill of high-class Sullivan and Cosmopolitan attractions, including the Fred Karno English Pan-tomime company presenting "A Night in a London Music Hall," Lohse and Sterling, acrobatic marvels; Jack Goldie, the clever singer, whistler and ragtime pianist; three motion picture plays, two serious dramas, "Pete," and "A Wife's Love," and a pleasing comedy, "Little Dorothy," and the concert orchestra program.

There is a list of attractions that at 10, 25 and 50 cents in an amusement bargain par excellence, for one of the acts alone, the music hall company, costs Manager Tammen no less than $400 in cold cash for the week's engagement—the highest price by far for a single act in this city.

The Wilbur Way

Stock clearing will be in force just one day more. There's an opportunity that occurs but once during the season and hundreds of women take advantage of this chance to replenish their wardrobes. Reliable garments never sell for less money, so secure what you want before this event closes.

Direct coats, opera capes, separate skirts, wool dresses, silk dresses, white or colored cloth suits, linen suits, lace dresses and lingerie dresses at HALF PRICE, as specified in former advertisements.

Additional Lots Less Than Half

Waists, dresses, suits and other garments included under this head. All particulars in former announcements.

Children's Dress Specials

All lines of children's wash dresses and suits specially priced for this sale. No better chance to lay in a supply for girls 2 to 14 years of age.

Wednesday the Last Day

Of the great "Wilbur Way" clearance. Don't miss the bargain event of the season.

Wilbur's

But this is only one of the shows offered for this ridiculously small price, for the Karno company in its riotously funny act presents a program of six acts which are typical of those seen in the London music halls, although, of course, only travesties on them.

There are the tropical extemporists; the ballad vocalists, Bunco, the magician, the village choir singers, the saucy, soubrette who by the way is a Turk who challenges all comers on the mat, and as a grand climax is thrown by the inebrated swell whose ludicrous stunts keep everybody laughing throughout the show.

Altogether this is the costliest bill of vaudeville any manager has ever had the courage to stage in this city, but Manager Tammen's enterprise is being rewarded in large audiences, and pleased patrons. No one who enjoys laughing should miss this bill, which will close its engagement Friday night, for it is the biggest treat in the comedy line that ever came down the pike.

One hundred minutes of entertainment for almost nothing; a thousand dollar bill for 10, 20 and 30 cents, is what it is. Performances at 2:30, 7:30 and 9:10.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS" MATINEE

The regular Wednesday matinee at the Opera House, given by the Lorch company, is a sprightly, funny comedy.

Stack company today, will bring forth Ouida's popular drama, "Under Two Flags," the play made famous by Miss Blanche Bates several years ago. This is the only matinee to be given of "Under Two Flags." A large attendance is expected, for "Under Two Flags" is a play that will attract ladies and children. The last performance of this drama will be given tonight and tomorrow night.

Cigarette is the leading character in "Under Two Flags." She is an orphan, who has been brought by the soldiers at the barracks. She is a wild, impetuous little creature, wilful, stubborn, but charming, fascinating and pretty. Cecil Fay is most pleasing as Cigarette. Her appearance as the little girl, in the brilliant Algerian costume, never fails to stir the audiences to applauding.

A unique performance will be given by the Lorch company Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee. It is a double bill, composed of a three-act farcical comedy, "Our Mother-in-Law," and a one-act version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The contrast between two plays could not be greater than between these two. The playlet, taken from "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," includes the great scene in the third act of the longer drama, in which Dr. Jekyll turns into Mr. Hyde in Dr. Lanyon's office. "Our Mother-in-Law" is a sprightly, funny comedy.

which, following "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," will relieve the gloom of the latter play.

"The House of a Thousand Candles," George Middleton's dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's well-known novel, will be presented by the Lorch company next week, commencing Monday night. Mr. Lorch will play Bates, and James Hawley will be seen as Larry Griffin, the irresistible Irishman. Cecil Fay appears in the leading feminine role. A beautiful stage production is being made of the play.

CRIPPLE CREEK

Special to The Gazette.
CRIPPLE CREEK, July 25.—The Little Giant mill was placed in commission yesterday and will put about 40 tons of low grade ore daily through the crushing rolls and into the solution tanks. The ore is mined from the property of the Little Giant Mining and Milling company in Poudre gulch, where the mill is situated. The plant is a modern one and was built following the destruction of the original plant by fire. The company has strong eastern backing, and if the low grade ores of this western section of the district may be treated at profit, work will be resumed on properties practically abandoned by the owners.

A call has issued for the annual stockholders' meeting of the Rexall Gold Mining and Milling company, to be held at the Denver office of the company on August 10, for the election of directors for the ensuing year. The company owns the Spicer mine at Victor and controls the Mt. Rosa Mining, Milling and Land company.

Bogart Active.
A prospecting permit running until September 1, with option of three years lease has been secured by Walter Wilson and A. W. Read of this city, on a portion of the Bogart claim on Raven hill and work is under way. The property is owned by the Bogart Gold Mining company.

To Prospect the Hummer.
Application for lease on the Humboldt claim on south Ironclad hill in this district has been forwarded the management of the Hummer Gold Mining company, owning the property. Victor parties are desirous of prospecting this ground.

Tornado Lessees Ship.
A shipment of milling grade ore was billed out this morning by the Elkhon authorities for lessees operating the Tornado mine on Raven hill. The property is active under lease and the operators are prospecting the old levels of the mine.

Crystal Peak.
A. B. Whitmore and party left this morning for the Crystal Peak section, north of Florissant in Teller county, to perform the annual assessment work on the claims of the Crystal Peak Gem company. In addition to lode and placer claims, carrying low gold values, there are found on the holdings of the Crystal Peak company, topaz, amethyst, amaranth, amonites, albites and garnets. These stones are of value to dealers in precious stones and large orders have been placed with the management by the curio dealers of this state and in the east.

CAS. MARK

CHICAGO, July 25.—Piling of wheat into Chicago reached a point today almost without precedent, crushing the market flat. The end of the day left corn closed a shade to 1/2 down, oats unchanged to 1/2 lower and provisions dearer by 50 to 200.

The total amount of wheat on hand in this city was figured today at the huge aggregate of 15,330,000 bushels. Included in this stock are 3,733,000 bushels of full contract grade as against only 451,000 bushels at the corresponding time a year ago. Simultaneous with this showing came news that the world's available supply had increased 4,577,000 bushels compared with a decrease of 2,341,000 bushels 13 months back. Export sales made little, if any difference in the prevailing bear sentiment. September ranged from 44 1/2 to 45 1/2, with last traded 1/2 cent lower at 45 1/2.

Corn followed the downward movement of wheat. September fluctuated between 62 1/2 and 64 closing nervous 1/2 cent lower at 62 1/2. Cash grades were weak. No. 2 yellow finished at 62 1/2.

Hedging sales against newly harvested oats made the market weak almost from the start. High and low levels touched by the September option were 40 1/2 and 39 1/2 with the close 39 1/2, a net loss of 1/2.

Provisions advanced because of a western packer's liberal buying of September lard. At the wind up pork was 2 1/2 to 30c higher than last night, lard increased in cost 10 to 12 1/2c. 10 lb. and ribs lifted 1/2 to 1 1/2c.

AMERICANS ARE MOST EXTRAVAGANT PEOPLE IN EARTH--REP. MOORE

and Millions Annually on Luxuries; Cause of High Cost of Living

By JONATHAN WINFIELD.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 25.—The diamonds, rings, gold chains and other articles of jewelry we bought for our sweethearts, wives and daughters the last five years cost more than the sum spent by the United States government to dig the Panama Canal. We are spending more than $100,000,000 a year for chewing gum in the United States alone. Our national habit burned up approximately $100,000,000 last year.

These remarkable figures are a few of the reasons given here today by Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania for the high cost of living in this country, a condition which deplores as being unnecessary.

"It has been said that we are a nation money-mad, bent only on the accumulation of wealth, the building up of great fortunes. This is only half the truth. We are also a money-spending-mad people. We devote our talents and energies to the task of accumulating riches. We get the riches, but we throw them away."

Expensive Luxuries.

In the fiscal year that ended last year we spent more than $2,000,000,000 on intoxicating drinks. In the 12 months of last year the people of this country ate candy and confectionery to the value of $200,000,000—an amount sufficient to put a string of gold around the world and down the Atlantic seaboard. Our bill for soda water and other nonintoxicating beverages has amounted to $200,000,000 in a single year. As far back as the year 1890 the automobile bill of this country was in excess of $30,000,000, and then this item has gone into the hundreds of millions. The comparative small item of $25,000,000 for chewing gum is a huge money to build and equip a 35 feet deep and reaching from the shore to Philadelphia.

What does such a stupendous record of extravagance mean? It means that the time has come for an organization to call the people back to some idea of the real value of money and the importance of living their lives on a reasonable and economical basis. The public cannot longer delude itself with the idea that the tariff and other laws are responsible entirely for the high cost of living. The people must face the fact that their own habits have inflated the price of existence.

Always Looking for Excuse.

"Since the days of Adam it has been the fashion for human beings to credit their misfortunes to the deeds and misdeeds of others; and in the last few years, it has been a special fad among Americans to lament the high cost of living and to place the blame for such conditions on the tariff, the trusts and any other agencies conveniently near at hand.

"There is yet to be heard an admission from the people of the United States that they, collectively and individually, are in any way responsible for the high and in many cases enormous prices they are now paying for food stuffs and the necessities of life. But as a matter of fact this extravagance has come to be a national habit among us, and self-indulgence, the natural child of extravagance, has walked hand-in-hand with our willingness to spend money—a willingness which at times amounts to eagerness.

"It has been said that we are a nation money-mad, bent only on the accumulation of wealth, the building up of great fortunes. This is only half the truth. We are also a money-spending-mad people. We devote our talents and energies to the task of accumulating riches. We get the riches, but we throw them away."

FORMER SOLDIERS CAN REENLIST IN THE ARMY

NEW YORK, April 25.—Officers in charge of army recruiting stations here called the attention of former soldiers to the army reserve act of 1912 under which they are eligible for active service if called on by the president. This act provides that men honorably discharged with a rating of "good" can enlist in the reserves if not over 45 years old and physically capable.

CAUSE OF FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE AT LAST IS DISCOVERED

Swiss Doctor Makes Remarkable Addition to Medical Knowledge

By GEORGE DUFRESNE

PARIS, April 25.—Several scientists and government experts are expected here in the early summer from America to investigate a remarkable discovery by a Swiss professor, Dr. Stauffacher, which apparently means the extermination of that dread foot and mouth disease in animals, so much feared the world over.

For the last year or two foot and mouth disease has been a very serious plague in Switzerland, the number of cases in 1913 having amounted to rather more than 60,000, an increase of 43,505, as compared with 1912. Owing to the strict measures of the veterinary department, however, the disease is now virtually extinct.

Dr. Stauffacher, who has already acquired some celebrity owing to his researches into the nature of phylloxera, now states that he has discovered what it is which causes foot and mouth disease. By means of a microscopic color process he has succeeded in rendering visible a new micro-organism—not, he says, a bacterium, but a parasite of infinitesimal dimensions, of the protozoa order. In all parts of a diseased animal he has examined, whether the tongue, the glands of the blood, he says that he has always found these parasites present in immense numbers, that they live upon animal cells, and can even exist in a cell.

Paris Jealous.

Paris is still jealous of her reputation of being the fountain from which all new feminine fashions spring. Only a few weeks ago one distinguished writer of the lighter order seriously lamented the fact that New York and even provincial London had dared to take up ideas which had not had their birth in Paris. Possibly this has caused inventive brains to work at higher pressure and in recent weeks scarcely a new play has been produced without

U. S. Fleet Sent to Mexican Waters Greatest World Has Ever Known, Says Expert

By SIDNEY ESPEY

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Few of the millions of newspaper readers who learned through the press on April 14 that the entire Atlantic fleet had been ordered to Tampico, realized the strength of that great organization or what it meant to get the dreadnaughts under way.

Americans justly are proud of their navy, but how many knew that this is the greatest offensive naval force the world has ever seen?

The American navy is outranked by the British, German and French fleets, with Japan close behind. But so great has been the progress in naval construction in the past decade that the Japanese fleet which gave little to the Russians in the Sea of Japan would have been absolutely helpless against the force which the United States sent to Mexican waters to enforce the insult offered to the Stars and Stripes. The battle of the Sea of Japan was the greatest naval engagement in history inasmuch as the ships engaged therein were far stronger than any which previously had fought. Despite this fact, however, a naval expert recently asserted that the force which sailed for Tampico under the command of Rear Admiral Badger on April 15 would not have had the slightest difficulty in destroying the Japanese and Russian fleets combined, as they were at the time of the Russo-Japanese war.

Statement Logical.

"This statement sounds a little improbable," said the naval expert who has had a hand in the increased efficiency of the modern battleships, "but a moment's consideration will show that it is quite logical."

In the first place there is nothing which goes out of style as quickly as a modern battleship. Five years is the limit of their top-notch efficiency and the majority do not last that long. They are then relegated to the "second line" of battle and then they drop rapidly until they have to go into reserve, the scrap heap of the navy.

The leading actress introducing some new mode.

Only a few nights ago a popular foot-light favorite struck a new line by appearing on the stage wearing evening dress and minus stockings. She wore boots laced high and these were adorned with bows of delicate silk ribbons. Straightway we were assured that the fashion would be widely adopted. But it has been so cold and the gusty winds have thus far fought on the side of the devotees to the humble stocking.

Nor does there appear to be any greater prospect of success for the fashion set by one of the daintiest of Parisian actresses, Mme. Jeanne Devost, the mode of bare toes. At the production of the play "Concert" at the Theatre Rejane, she caused a great commotion in the thronged foyer by appearing with her feet, shod in pretty sandals, fastened round her ankles by cross-ribbons in the old Greek style. "It is delightful to have the feet quite free," she said to those who questioned her. "Why should women cram themselves into narrow boots with four-inch heels?"

Jewelers are already having toe rings made for sandal wearers.

Reproduces Waterloo Field.

The movement in England to raise a fund for preservation, in its original guise, of the battlefield of Waterloo has apparently been successful and those ingenious persons who are fortunate enough to reside on the site of this historic encounter have had, therefore, to make provision for the expected influx of tourists. Perhaps I should say the coming of the souvenir hunter for it is utterly unfashionable to visit Waterloo without taking away some memento of the scene of Napoleon's downfall.

I am sorry to have to strike a warning note or do anything which might detract from the full enjoyment of American tourists visiting this renowned spot but there is a true story worth noting. Some few days ago the good ship Crimea arrived at Marseilles with a hundred-ton weight of little sacks on board which gave a metal clink as they dropped from the cranes. Three or four other ships of the Massageries Maritimes unloaded smaller quantities of little bags, and all the bags have been sent on to Belgium. The bags contain bullets which have been collected on the battlefields of the Balkans. They are going to Waterloo where they will be sold to tourists as relics. The stock of genuine Waterloo bullets gave out some time ago and the demand is very steady. The Balkan war will now supply a long felt want and incidentally, it has not been in vain after all.

"None of the ships which took part in the Russo-Japanese war would compare in any way with those in the secondary line of battle at the present time. And our dreadnaughts could stand out of their range and rake them fore and aft with their big 14-inch shells while the enemy would be utterly helpless. It would be nothing short of murder."

In a course at Annapolis recently the problem was asked the senior class at the naval academy whether they would prefer to have a fleet of 100 vessels of the class of the old Oregon or a single ship of the type of the New York. The majority of the class chose rightly—the single New York would be worth more than 100 Oregons in a battle.

Could Destroy Whole Fleet.

In the first place, the New York could hit and totally disable practically all the Oregons before the latter could get into range. There is no reason why the gunners on the New York or the Texas could not destroy the entire opposing fleet before any of the hundred vessels got near enough for the shells to ricochet anywhere near the dreadnaught. This will give you some idea of the rapidity with which battleships grow old and have to be discarded. That is also the reason why it is better to scrap an old ship or to use her for target practice for the useful vessels of the navy than to pay out real money for her maintenance in some navy yard where it costs considerable money to keep her seaworthy.

"Of course, the vessels which participated in the battle of the Sea of Japan were far in advance of the Oregons, but not so far as our present vessels in advance of those of 12 years ago. A dozen years spells the difference between youth and old age in a battleship, and as in other walks of life, the battle nearly always is to the strong and youthful. The exceptions are too infrequent to affect the reading of the rule."

Luther Burbank has accomplished more in the development of plums than all others in the world combined

NINETY-FIVE per cent of all new plums introduced during the past twenty-three years that have become standard are Burbank productions, although five times as many were introduced from other sources. This record speaks volumes for the genius of Luther Burbank.

Some Burbank fruit trees in your yard will add much to your pleasure and profits.

It is now possible by those who grow the Burbank plums to secure a continual supply of plums fresh picked from the tree over a season of three months.

A distinguishing feature of all the Burbank fruits is the extremely early bearing characteristic. Call on us and we will tell you how for the first time the opportunity is yours for obtaining the wonderful Burbank Plums, Plumcots, Peaches, Cherries, Stoneless Prunes, Pineapple Quince and the Burbank Berries.

GOVERNOR AMMON'S APPOINTMENT
A commission to investigate the coal strike situation is another step toward the settlement of the coal strike. The commission is to be composed of a representative of the coal industry, a representative of the labor union, and a representative of the public. The commission is to report to the governor within a specified period of time.

THE STRIKE SITUATION
The coal strike situation is becoming more and more serious. The coal industry is suffering from a severe shortage of coal, which is causing a great deal of hardship for the public. The labor union is demanding a higher wage and better working conditions. The situation is becoming more and more tense, and it is only a matter of time before a violent clash will occur.

THE COAL STRIKE AND TAXATION
The coal strike and taxation are two of the most serious problems facing the state. The coal strike is causing a severe shortage of coal, which is causing a great deal of hardship for the public. Taxation is also a serious problem, as the state is facing a large deficit. The government is trying to raise taxes to cover the deficit, but this is causing a great deal of hardship for the public.

THE LESSON OF LUDLOW
The lesson of Ludlow is a lesson that should be learned by all. It is a lesson that teaches us that the use of force is never the answer. It is a lesson that teaches us that the only way to solve a problem is through peaceful means. The lesson of Ludlow is a lesson that should be learned by all, and it is a lesson that should be remembered forever.

THE SINGLE TAX
The single tax is a tax system in which there is only one tax, the land value tax. This tax is levied on the value of the land, and it is the only tax that is paid. The single tax is a simple and fair tax system, and it is the only way to solve the problem of taxation.

American Pearl Fisheries

Of all the valuable articles of adornment perhaps the pearl is the most widely distributed over the earth. It has been prized for its beauty by prince and pauper, by the pampered favorites of modern potentates and by the dusky beauties of prehistoric savage chiefs. It has been an article of great price for ages, and it is as practically useless, as perfectly beautiful, and as outrageously expensive today as it ever was. Its possession has ever been a mark of wealth. The Indian rajahs for ages collected the beautiful gems from the famed fisheries of Ceylon, the Ptolemies of Egypt had their divers dive the Red sea of its nacreous treasures, while the Macedonian Greeks despoiled the Persian gulf. To get them, fleets have been fitted out and continents exploited, for the fact that pearls were found in the new world by Columbus had much to do with its subsequent development. The glitter of gold and the sheen of the pearl lured on the bold conquerors of Mexico and nerved the daring of Pizarro's adventurous band to the conquest of Peru.

It was in 1498, when on his third voyage, that Columbus sailed into the Gulf of Paria, enclosed between the northern coast of Venezuela and the island of Trinidad, where "the natives came to the ship in countless numbers, many of them wearing pieces of gold on their breasts and some with bracelets of pearls on their arms." These, they told Columbus, had been pictured along the coast in their own neighborhood, and that is the first we hear of the celebrated "Pearl Coast," that portion of the Venezuelan waters which, according to a news item in the Monthly Bulletin of the Pan American union, has recently been leased to one of its citizens by the Venezuelan government for a period of three years. The conclusion is said to give the exclusive right to fish for pearls off the island of Margarita and in the sea along the northeastern coast of the republic. The lease is to pay the government $600 per month during the fishing season for the privilege, and doubtless the enterprise will prove profitable, for here were once located the most celebrated fisheries of American waters.

The principal pearl oyster beds of the region are located around the island of Margarita (Spanish for pearl), at Cubagua, El Tirol, gulf of Paria (called "El Golfo de las Perlas" by Columbus), Port-au-Pierre, Maracaibo and Macanazo. Those fisheries were very rich when found by the Spaniards, but during the 50 years following their discovery were almost ruined by over-fishing. During the past century the fishing has been revived from time to time, and in recent years has again become profitable. The government exercises a rigid supervision over the industry and is making every effort to conserve this source of revenue. During the fishing season more than 400 sailing vessels and about 2,000 men are constantly at work along the pearl coast and among the islands. The annual product of the beds in the vicinity of Margarita alone is estimated to have a value of $600,000. It is said that in 1578 King Philip of Spain obtained from Margarita a magnificent pearl weighing 380 carats and variously estimated as being worth from $30,000 to $100,000. The Venezuelan pearls are of very good orient and color, and the fisheries are especially noted for the number of beautiful baroque (pearls of irregular or grotesque shapes) found.

Perhaps the richest pearl fisheries in the Americas at present are those of the Gulf of California, centering around La Paz, and along the outer coast of Lower California in Mexico, and along the entire west coast of the gulf from La Paz to above the island of Loreto and Tiburón, on the east side. Pearls are also found along the southern coast of Mexico and in Nicaragua, and in the Gulf of Campeche on the eastern coast of Mexico. The principal fisheries of this section are, however, among the islands of the Gulf, lying in the Gulf of Panama about 50 miles from the City of Panama. These consist of Rev Island, Pacheco, Pedro Gonzalez, San Jose, and a number of smaller islands to the north. Some beds are worked along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Colombia and on the latter coast as far as Ecuador and Peru. The Costa Rica, Panama and Colombia fisheries are famous for their black, green and bluish tinted pearls, while many beautiful delicate pinks have also been found. With hardly an exception there are American pearls among the crown jewels of every ruler in Europe.

SUBJECTS FOR AMERICAN PAINTINGS

Owen Hatteras, in Smart Set. Instead of our artists employing their time and talents on such old world, decadent themes as "The Coliseum by Moonlight," "The Dying Legionary" and "A Section of Old Bologna," they should occupy themselves more especially with essentially American subjects.

For instance, why bother with the Rhine, the Appian Way and the Streets of Cairo, when beyond the Rockies lie Utah and Reno? Why the Vampire, when there is available the Empire? Why Bash-Bazooka, Salome, burlesque masters, donkey boys, madonnas and madonnas, when there are to be had Sullivan porters, southpaws, industrial workers, lepers, feudists, grafters and pickaninnies? Rather than Jupiter and Io, let us have Jawndee and Ida; instead of Theodoros, give us Theodore.

From Kensington to Dresden and Saturnia, what more inspiring scenic subject than "The Breakfast Food Canon at Niagara," "The Billboards of Cincinnati" and "A Proposed 50-Story National Capitol After Suggestions by Joseph G. Cannon?" Possibilities in portraiture are "A Cabinet Officer," done in whitewash, or "The Forgetful Magnate," in oil.

Other suggestions are offered: "Sacrifice of Wall Street Lamb," "Birthplace of Texas R. Cobb," "Trust President in Stripes," "The Man Higher Up," "The Joy Riders," "New York Policeman Getting His," "American Explorer Discovering the North Pole" (the pole worked into the background some 300 miles.)

OXFORD QUARTER WINS PENN RELAY IN THRILLING FINISH

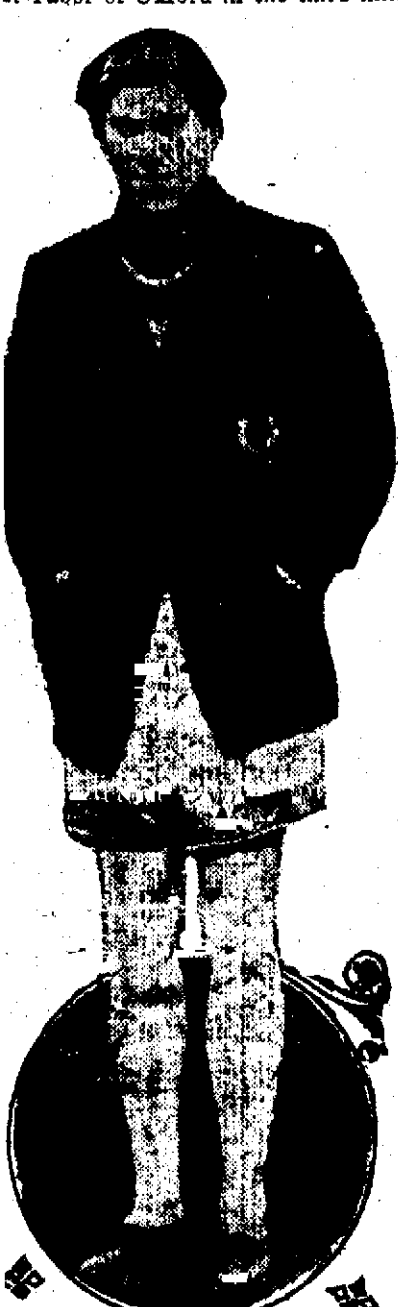

Jackson, British Miler, Falls Over Tape Eight Inches Ahead of American; Crowd Nearly Spoils Race

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—Oxford university of England won the four-mile college relay championship of America from the University of Pennsylvania here today in the most sensational finish ever seen in that event in the years the race has been run on Franklin field. The English team had to fight all the way and won the remarkable race by a scant eight inches.

As the two runners came down the stretch, stride for stride, Pennsylvania supporters thought McCurdy would win, and excited spectators rushed on the track. But splendid work by policemen who clubbed back the crowd kept the track clear.

Otherwise the two men would not have been able to finish. As the two men fell across the line an excited spectator rushed at James Sullivan, the referee, and wildly protested that McCurdy had been fouled. Sullivan waved him away and declared the English team the winner. There is not the slightest ground for protest, the referee said.

Aside from the showing made by McCurdy against the Olympic champion, a surprise of the race was the ease with which Maderia of Pennsylvania at Tabor of Oxford in the third mile.

JACKSON OF OXFORD

he ran one of the greatest relay laps ever seen in America and won the international honors for the English school at yesterday's relay carnival held by the University of Pennsylvania.

Maderia's time was 4:22 4-5, the fastest of the four. Sproule, the first Oxford relay man, took the lead at the start of the race and set the pace. The time for the mile was 4:33. The second relay was taken up by Langner, Pennsylvania. Gaussen, Oxford. At the half mile Langner and Gaussen drew away from the other two and the Pennsylvania man finished the mile a yard in front of the Oxonian. The time was 4:34, or 9:07 for the two miles.

Maderia Passes Tabor.

Maderia and Tabor in the third relay ran together during the first quarter of a mile and there was no change in their position at the end of the half mile and in the third quarter. Tabor tried to shake off the Pennsylvania man, but instead of doing this, he saw Maderia pass him and open up a gap and handed the baton to McCurdy for the last mile 15 yards in the lead. The time for the three miles was 13:29 4-5.

Jackson easily made up the distance Tabor had lost and he and McCurdy ran around the track together all through the first, second and third quarters and into the last quarter to within an eighth of a mile of the finish where both cut loose for an exciting finish.

The time of this mile was 4:35, the slowest of the four, due to the fact that each man was saving himself for the final drive home.

The one-mile college relay championship of America was won by Harvard with Pennsylvania second and Cornell third, the only starters. The time was 3:22 3-5.

The two-mile college relay championship was won by Illinois in the round time of 8 minutes, four seconds, Michigan, second and Chicago third.

California Makes Good.

When the meagerness of her entry list is considered, the University of Southern California made a remarkable showing. Drew, her champion sprinter, won the 100-yard dash and also the broad jump, while Kelly romped away in first place in the 120-yard hurdles. Drew won his trial heat in 10 seconds and the final in 10:1-5 seconds.

Summary of events: One-mile college relay won by Syracuse; second, University of Minnesota; third, Penn State. Time, 3:22 3-5. Two-mile college relay, championship of America, won by Illinois; second, Washington; third, Chicago. Time, 8 minutes 4 seconds.

One-mile college relay championship of America, won by Harvard; second, Pennsylvania; third, Cornell. Time, 3:22 3-5. One-mile freshman college championship of America, won by Pennsylvania; second, Dartmouth. Time, 3:30 4-5.

Broad jump, won by Drew, Southern California, 22 feet; second, Goch, Virginia, 21 feet 4 inches; third, Morrison, Cornell, 20 feet 11 1/2 inches. Hammer throw, won by Loughbridge, Yale, 142 feet 8 1/2 inches; second, McCutcheon, Cornell, 141 feet 1/2 inches.

Many Seeking Bouts With Al. McCoy

Not a fighter who can make the weight in these United States but is eager to be matched with Al McCoy of Brooklyn, the phenom who flashed upon the fight firmament with his snapshot seizure of the middleweight title from George Chip.

But Al, although a steady battler and of undoubted courage, is wisely cautioning in on his new reputation by a series of vaudeville engagements.

He will not keep his friends waiting for long, he promises. They are anxious to have him knock to smithereens the insinuation that he won by a "fluke," or a "lucky punch." It was a lucky punch, they admit, but they maintain Al has many such he can unwork at will.

It is asserted that Al has never really shown what he can do but has always stood on the defensive when meeting a first-class opponent. That is—until the historic clash with George.

Leading the pack which is buying at the Brooklynite heels is George himself. He is sure he can rehabilitate himself. He does not scoff at Al's ability, but he would like an opportunity to be knocked down in two minutes again—or to give a different aspect to affairs.

Then there are Bob Mohn and Mike Gibbons, both good boys. They are "prominently mentioned" as candidates for bouts with Al. Out on the coast the promoters are trying to get McCoy signed up for a bout with Billy Murray, the winner to take on either Eddie McGoorty or Jimmy Clabby when these worthies return from Australia.

PUEBLO BOWLERS FAIL TO GIVE M'REYNOLDS PRIZES

Chagrined at Local Men's High Score They Prolong Tournament and Hold on to $125

Colorado Springs bowling fans are up in arms over the tactics of those in charge of the Rocky Mountain Bowling congress at Pueblo and unless the Puebloans explain their actions and "come clean" on their offers, it will be a long time before the locals will give their support to any Smokytown alley events.

It seems that the Pueblo alley management has not been playing fair with B. B. McReynolds, superintendent of the Colorado Springs water system, and one of the region's star pin demoblers. McReynolds visited there two weeks ago and rolled an average of 193, which, according to the latest information, was the highest average individual score. Prize money for this was announced at $125.

The tournament was to have closed last Monday and, according to information received here, the management has been allowing Pueblo bowlers to roll as often as they wish for an entrance fee of $2. This handicaps the locals who cannot make more trips, and the agreement was that the scores should stand as they were last Monday.

Not that they care for the money prizes, but just the idea of letting Pueblo slip something over is what worries the local pin men.

SEEING THAT the navy lost both in baseball and rowing Saturday, Huerta decided not to salute.

T. E. NOWELS WINNER OF NOVICE CUP AT C. S. CLUB

Realization Cup Tournament Closes Today With Randol Leading With 74, Beating Hagerman One

T. E. Nowels, well-known on newspaper row, has won a cup—a golf cup. This w. k. n. m., like several of his colleagues, has taken up the Scotch game and yesterday he was awarded the Novice cup offered at the Colorado Springs Golf club for the best score for eight holes made by the new members of the club, without coaching and with only a general knowledge of the game. Nowels turned in a 60 for eight holes and the cup can be seen on his desk every other day. He wants to keep it at home on alternate days.

Pierce Kampf was second with 62 and Sheriff Birdall followed the white pill around with only 68 strokes. Birdall has some form, they say. Golfing form, that is.

The Realization cup tournament will close at the club today. This cup is offered for the best score on the completed 18-hole course. W. M. Randol is in the lead with a net 74, one stroke lower than that made by Percy Hagerman.

TERRORS STEAL BASES AT WILL, WALLOPING CUTLER IN GAME SHOT TO CORE WITH ERRORS

Score 13 to 2 After Nine Stormy Sessions; Deal Holds Red Hitters to Three Welts

By T. W. ROSS.

Yesterday's contest at Washburn field between the Terrors and Cutler was no ball game. It was a riot. The final score was 13 to 2 in favor of the Terrors but the Arabic notation fails to tell the story and it is about as sad as it is long.

The Terrors took advantage of Lewis' inexperience in the second inning and stole bases so rapidly that the young Fowler giantist lost his control, the infielders took flights and it became so pitiful that whenever a Terror reached first he leisurely trotted around to third and sometimes across the plate. Cutler soon became afraid to throw the ball. The Terrors took chances that in a real ball game would have been rubbish but they did it as if they had a right to and Cutler players apparently thought so and did not interfere.

On the other hand, the Terrors' team play was not of the best. The only runs that Coach Falk's players could assemble came on plays that were reminiscent of corner lot stuff. But Deal, who held down the warming pan for Coach Acker's undergraduates, seemed to be master of his own particular situation and he allowed the Cutler machine but three hits, one a three-bagger by Fischer. Deal didn't steam them up to any great extent but he found a large flock of bats to swing at his slow ones.

Relayed throws and catches at the bases featured the Cutler fielding, as can be seen by a perusal of the "assist" column in the box score. The nine errors given Cutler may cover their misdeeds but they are getting off easy at that, because linehead plays cannot be scored.

Lewis Is Made Unhappy.

Lewis breezed along nicely in the first but the runaway frolic didn't start until the second. In this session Schneider got to first on an error, Vaughn drew a base on balls and Holman hit a terrific blow far into the gravel pit and made the circuit. Shippee hit to center, stole second and Smith struck out but Gallagher dropped the ball and threw to third instead of first. Everybody began to steal and "Hink" Barnes was the only unlucky one, getting nipped at the plate when he scooted there under Lewis' eyes.

Cutler showed offensive power only in the first, when Jones smashed one that Schneider bobbled, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Gallagher's hit. Tucker had previously walked and hit two on the cushions. Deal struck out three straight.

The Terrors' Misdeeds.

Cutler scored two more in the third when the Terrors began to get trowsy in their throws. Jones singled and went to third when Thrang let Deal's throw get away. Tucker hit an easy one to Shippee, who caught Jones at the plate. Holman taking the throw and blocking the runner. Then three easy fielders' choice hits trickled into the infielders' hands and they began to throw them away. Thrang and Shippee were the villains in this act.

After this inning, with the exception of errors, the Terrors kept Cutler from getting dangerous.

The Schneider crew, following the example of their speedy captain, attempted to steal bases by the carload and became reckless to the point of extravagance. Result, several runs shorn from the list.

Holman led the field in batting with a homerun, a three-bagger and a single while Whittenberger was passed four times. Now and then there was a fast fielding stunt but as the Englishman described it, "innings followed innings." The Terrors play Centennial Wednesday.

Twelve Years of Success Is Behind this New $1250 Cart. car with the Gearless Transmission

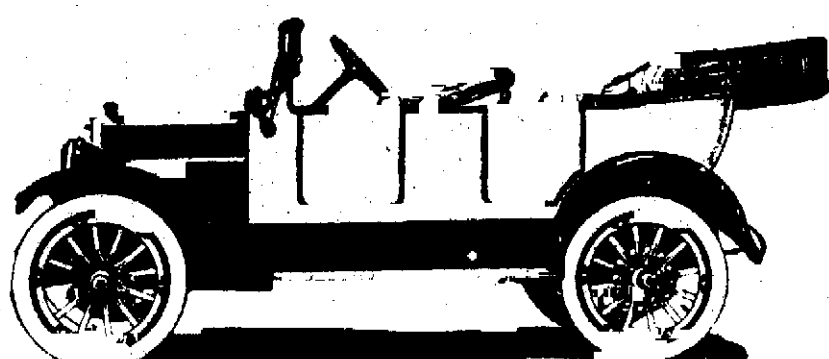

For twelve years the gearless transmission of the Cartcar has been giving the utmost in service and has proven under the most rigid tests that it is the simplest and most efficient of all drive systems.

New Model 7 Cartcar has all the good features of this transmission, has the same careful construction and reliable materials that have been used in manufacturing the older models and yet it sells for only $1250.

Model 7 is produced in two bodies, the five and two passenger, both of the same chassis, with a wheel base of 106 inches, built with the idea of room, good, wide seats and plenty of foot room.

The bodies adopted are standard, by that is meant that startling changes of design will not be made each year in the body design, as this has a tendency to depreciate the value of your car.

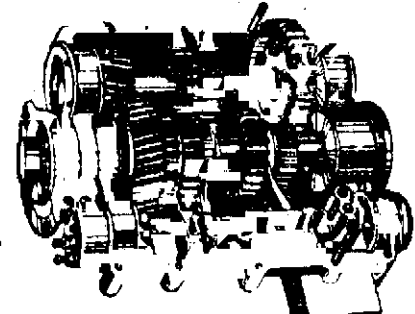

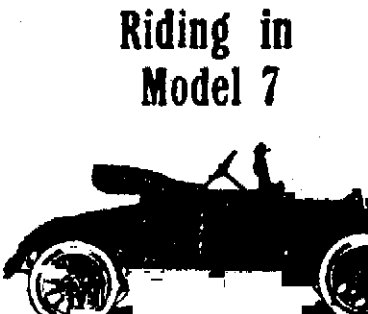

Beautiful of design, superb finish, with a sturdy, powerful four cylinder engine, gearless transmission and electric starting and lighting and full equipment, Model 7 is vastly more than you would expect at the price, $1250.

Special to The Gazette.

DENVER, April 25.—Surprising themselves and gaining much-needed confidence, the track men of Colorado college today defeated the Denver university team by the score of 71 to 46, in the first dual meet of the season.

Bingham, Denver's weight star, proved the sensation of the meet by breaking state and conference records in the discus and hammer throws, tossing the missiles so far that it will be some time before the marks are broken again.

E. Smith, a slim-colored lad from Cheyenne, was the surprise on the Tiger team. Ever since the first of the year Smith has been training, and his work yesterday proved it. Lieberknecht, another freshman sprinter, who took second in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, also shows promise.

In the hammer throw, Bingham outclassed the Tiger men on his first throw and later took a trial throw, and the ball sailed 140 feet. The former record was 135 feet 3 inches, and was made by Pike of the University of Colorado, in 1912.

The discus throw displayed Bingham's superb form, and he tossed the Grecian missile four feet farther than the record held by Roy Pike of the U. of C., and the new record is 127.55 feet.

Frickey, who won the broad jump events for Colorado college, displayed good form and leaped 21 feet 9 1/2 inches, better than his record at the high school meets last year. Wycoff was second.

With the victory, which was not expected, to cheer them up, Tiger track men believe that they will have a better team than was hoped out, and it is probable that the man who have not been working will start up.

The next meet on the Tiger schedule is with the Aggies at Colorado Springs on May 9. On May 15 the dual meet with the State university will be run at Boulder, and the conference meet in Denver, May 23.

school meets last year. Wycoff was second.

Davis Individual Star.
 The work of Mack Davis, the Tiger star, was as consistent as ever. He took the pole vault from Pierce easily at 10 feet 10 inches, took first in the shot put and divided points with Cover in the high jump. He won the individual honors of the meet with Bingham second.

Wray showed his return to form in the mile run and reeled off the distance easily. In the two-mile, Deeds, the Denver runner, had a hard race with Hall, but the Tiger hurdler was not up to his regular form.

Harry Balch, in the low hurdles, gave promise of exceptional class this year. He cleared the hurdle in 23. The state record is 25.5, made by Vincent of Boulder last year.

Kampf ran a good race in the half, but his lack of experience was the only thing against him.

In the relay, Coach Rothgeb sprang a surprise with his team, and Captain Koch ran a quarter in good time. Stokes, Cover and Smith ate up the remaining sections in fair time. The time was 3:48, while the conference record is 3 minutes 29.4-5 seconds.

The track and field were in poor condition today and the attendance was small.

With the victory, which was not expected, to cheer them up, Tiger track men believe that they will have a better team than was hoped out, and it is probable that the man who have not been working will start up.

The next meet on the Tiger schedule is with the Aggies at Colorado Springs on May 9. On May 15 the dual meet with the State university will be run at Boulder, and the conference meet in Denver, May 23.

KAISER ANTAGONISTIC
TO CATHOLIC CHURCH?CONTROVERSY IN GERMANY MAY INVOLVE EMPEROR BECAUSE OF STATEMENT MADE SEVERAL YEARS AGO

By FREDERICK WERNER

BERLIN, April 25.—For weeks past discussion has been general throughout the country regarding the Kaiser's alleged antagonism to Roman Catholicism and, with surprising daring, assertions have been made that his majesty has frequently expressed his detestation of the Roman faith.

The German press has been "unofficially" outspoken. The question was first raised by the publication of an extract from a letter alleged to have been written by the Kaiser 12 years ago. It is said the letter was written by the Kaiser, as the head of the house of Prussia, to Countess Anna of Hesse, who in 1901 was received into the Roman Catholic church, and contained the remark: "The religion to which you have gone over, I detest."

Old Question Revived.

Recently it was stated semi-officially that the Kaiser's letter which eventually it is declared came into the possession of the late Cardinal Kopp had "not yet" been discovered among the papers of the recently deceased prelate. Then came another point of contention. Count Hoesbuech, the well known author of many religious works, described in a volume just issued in interview he had with the Kaiser in 1896. After the count had pointed out the seriousness of the Ultramontane peril, the emperor, shaking him by the hand, declared:

"You may take this as certain my dear Count that I am antipathetic to the backbone and through me my government will be the same."

It is extremely unlikely that the Kaiser will be drawn into any official statement though the Imperial journals have not failed to take up the cudgels on his behalf.

Kiel Canal Widened

With the approaching completion of the widening of the Kiel canal the Imperialistic organs continue with greater vigor their agitation for the provision of a second eastern exit to this important waterway which will enable the largest ships to pass freely between the North Sea and the Baltic.

The official newspaper of the Schleswig-Holstein government announces that property owners must give facilities to surveys with a view to first a canal between Eiderhord and the Kiel canal, secondly a new harbor at Eiderhord and thirdly a canal from the Schiel river, where it widens out east of Schleswig to the Windbeave, near west of Nchernford. The naval authorities seem to attach some importance to denying that the scheme is official or strategic. It is said to be due to private initiative and it is asserted that the navy, although it would welcome a double exit of the Kiel canal, in the Baltic, has not sufficient interest in the scheme to justify its great cost.

Previous Growing Distrust.

The democratic movement in Prussia is growing and a further indication is forthcoming in the announcement that the ministry of war proposes according to the 'Abendpost' to introduce a new grade between the noncommissioned and commissioned officers, viz. those among the former who have completed 12 years service will be enabled to serve as deputy commissioned officers in the offices and land district commissions. Military service will thus become for them a permanent career as in the case with the commissioned officers. In Prussia this is a step albeit small, in the direction of the ultimate democratization of the officers' corps, and is greeted with delight by the Liberal press which now wishes to know why this new rank should not be employed also at the front, as it apparently would be in time of war. The Radical papers assure the government of their readiness to support the demand for any money necessary for the establishing of such middle grade commissions.

The Socialist forces here—a particu-

RUSSIA PROPOSES TO GROW OWN COTTONWould Reclaim Vast Arid Section in the Hunger
Steppe

ST. PETERSBURG, April 25.—Russia now pays annual tribute of $50,000,000 to Egypt and the United States principally the latter for raw cotton. One-half the supply is bought outside the empire. The council of the empire is resolved to grow all Russian cotton on her own land by the irrigation and colonization of the Hunger steppe, a vast region in Turkestan.

A bill has just been introduced in the duma providing for the association of the state and private enterprise in carrying out irrigation works to cost $3,500,000.

The irrigation work is to be coupled with a vast scheme of settlement of Chinese from the interior of the empire. It is this out which suddenly gave rise to a passionate debate in the Russian upper house. Who are to be the settlers to receive land on privileged terms for the purpose of cultivating cotton?

Duma Opposes Scheme.

The duma had from the first discarded the idea that the land was to be distributed among Russian subjects and immediately it decided in favor of excluding from the privilege all Russian subjects of non-Christian faith that is, all Jews and Mohammedans.

But in a council of the empire, a section of the members led by M. Shishinsky, a former minister, went one better. They proposed that the work of settlement should only be confined to Russian subjects of genuine Russian origin, as only such men would be able to bear the Russian climate.

The contention may be the exclusion of all Russians of the unorthodox faith whose descent at one point or another could be shown to have been foreign—i. e. Polish, German, Jewish, Armenian and so forth.

Great Opposition Aroused

It aroused great opposition among the more aggressive element of the council. Their spokesman, M. Stakhovich, one of the most respected men in the empire, a former member of the duma, and a moderate Liberal delivered a strong speech.

Where, he asked, would he himself

SMOKING PERMITTED
IN LONDON THEATERSAMERICAN ACTORS STAR IN GAIETY PRODUCTIONS; CHILI'S NEW DREADNAUGHTS TO BE READY
ABOUT MAY 1, 1915, BUT MAY BE SOLD TO SOME OTHER POWER

By PHILIP EVERETT

LONDON, April 25.—To smoke or not to smoke in the theaters is the raging controversy of the moment. It is an old old question that London theatrical managers have discussed and argued about for years, but times have changed. New elements have arisen to alter general aspect and diminishing receipts at the theaters have caused the proprietors to look around for some means of popularizing the theater.

In the music hall and the moving picture show smoking is of course permitted but in the legitimate West end theater it has never been allowed. Now George Edwards, the greatest of the musical comedy producers proposes to permit smoking in the Gaiety theater, a house in which Frank Jay Gould holds a big financial interest. Why Mr. Edwards should choose the Gaiety as the medium of this experiment is not quite obvious, but there may be more in the move than meets the eye—that is if gossip counts for anything.

Old Quarrel Settled.

A few years ago Mr. Edwards and Mr. Gould were at loggerheads over the management of the theater, and there was some talk of Mr. Gould acquiring a controlling financial interest in the house and running it according to his own ideas. That did not eventuate, but it is significant that since that day Mr. Edwards has gradually reduced the "star" caste of Gaiety theater. It would almost seem to be a duel between the English and American interests, with the balance of power in favor of the man on the spot.

For many years Teddy Patne, the greatest musical comedy comedian of the generation, has been a Gaiety institution, but he has been transferred to the Adelphi together with Miss Phyllis Dare and other "stars" of promise, if of lesser note. Miss Gertie be, seeing that he was of Polish parentage. Indeed, he proceeded, where would M. Stishinsky himself be, whose father also hailed from Poland? And would M. Stishinsky's proposal have applied also to General von Kaufman, a German by descent, who had conquered Turkestan? And would Catherine the Great, a Cossack of the purest water also, have been disqualified from holding land in the Hunger steppe? The argument was unanswerable. And M. Stishinsky could only explain that this was a distinction which only applied to the lower, not to the higher social scale. Thereupon the majority of the council broke out into laughter and M. Stishinsky's amendment was rejected.

Miller the "Picture post-card queen," and an enormous favorite with a musical comedy public, has gone to the Gaiety theater, and there is an altogether unfamiliar flavor about the Gaiety caste.

In the show now running—"After the Girl"—Lew Hearn and Mr. Clifford Crawford, so well known on the American stage, are playing the leading parts and the "leading lady" is an ex-cortana girl from the Adelphi, who received meteoric promotion for the purposes of the latest production, though she has not yet achieved any great measure of popularity. Hearn and Crawford make the show, but many are wondering what it all means.

Why should the Gaiety, the most famous of all the West end theaters, be singled out by Edwards as the medium for his daring experiment, especially as the bill has been shorn of all the old Gaiety favorites? Has M. Edwards become indifferent to the fortunes of the theater which brought him fame and fortune? Maybe Mr. Gould is also curious on these points.

Chile's New Dreadnaughts.

Speculation is once more rife regarding the destination of the two Chilean dreadnaughts now building in this country. For the present it seems that the states which appear inclined to increase their naval forces by becoming bidders in the open market for dreadnaughts, have turned their attention from the two Argentine ships now ready in the American yards, and are looking to the British ship yards. It is said that Chile has been reported that one of them is Italy. This testifies to the acuteness of the naval rivalry in Europe.

So far as I have been able to ascertain the present position, the bidders are for the moment confronted with the following obstacles: Officially the Chilean government declares that it is not willing to sell the two powerful units now under construction, which will be ready about May 1, 1915, the second some six or seven months later. The truth is (1) that Chile expects to get better prices by waiting a little longer, and (2) that the Chilean government is not united as to the use to be made of the money derived from the sale. While some of the ministers would like to deduct it from the military budgets altogether, and employ it in some scheme of social reform, others, and among them the heads of the military party, insist on the sums which would be realized, should the sale take place, being kept in reserve for military purposes.

Throughout the whole of Europe intense activity prevails in the provision of armaments of the most modern type and it is somewhat remarkable to find Great Britain, after the disastrous experiences in recent years, determined to make a considerable increase in her fleet of airships, as distinct from the aeroplanes. This rather unwieldy instrument of war is, of course, in great favor in Germany, and while its utility is obvious, the limitations of the airship are equally apparent. The disasters which have occurred from time to time in this country were thought to have brought about a curtailment of the government's program, but that such is not the case has been demonstrated by the opening this week of a great airship station at Kingsnorth in the neighborhood of Chatham, near the mouth of the Thames, where two great airship halls have been erected.

17 CONVICTED OF

ATTEMPTED MURDER

ST. PETERSBURG, April 25.—All except one of the 17 young workmen charged with the attempted murder of an engineer, the Salamander, who at Riga have been convicted. Five were sentenced to six years hard labor and seven to four years. Another received a sentence of 32 months imprisonment and the last was acquitted.

The examination of the prisoners concerning tortures alleged to have been inflicted on them lasted four hours. Allusion is made to the Riga torture chamber and it is affirmed that the inquisition extended over several nights.

The four chief prisoners declared in court that they falsely implicated the other prisoners in the case only because of the torture to which they were subjected in prison. After being flogged they were stripped naked and had their feet burned to extent confessions from them.

Moreover, they were warned that unless they adhered to their "confessions" their treatment would be repeated. Tortures were inflicted during the night.

Jerusalem May Be Europeanized
in Near Future; Street Railway Lines Proposed by Foreigners

JERUSALEM, April 25.—Work will be started soon on four lines of street railway in this holy city. With new waterworks, up-to-date lighting and moving picture theaters, it is safe to say that many devout persons, soon will have a distinct shock on visiting the scene of Christ's labors.

In certain respects, Jerusalem bids fair to be thoroughly "Europeanized" at no distant date. Its isolation, once considerable in spite of the existence of European religious foundations and the annual influx of pilgrims, has had to yield during the last 40 years to a host of new influences that have invaded conservative Palestine. Chief among these are the great increase of tourist traffic, the construction of railroads from Jaffa, the growth of education among the Arab population, and last but not least, the rapidly increasing immigration of the Jews, who numbered but 500 souls in all Palestine a century ago, but now form 60 per cent of the 30,000 inhabitants of Jerusalem.

The municipality of Jerusalem has just granted a concession for the electric lighting of the city and for the construction and exploitation of an electric street railway system to the French Perier bank, which also seems to have obtained an option on the construction of the much-needed waterworks.

May Build Waterworks.

Till now European residents and some of the wealthier natives have bought their drinking water, which is brought up in tins and barrels from the excellent spring at Bittir by the daily train from Jaffa. But it remains to be seen whether the mass of the population will be willing to make the waterworks concession a paying proposition by abandoning the use of rain water stored in the cisterns which every native house possesses. Such a departure from custom would doubtless result in a decrease of malarial fevers, which is naturally rife in Jerusalem, the terms being ideal breeding places for anophelids and its kind, but matters of drinking orientals are the most conservative of men.

There are Turks at Constantinople who all their lives long shake their thirst with water from one spring and 100 miles along the Jaffa road. And only the average Egyptian prefers the distinctly flavored and slightly turbid Nile water to the pure, and most limpid streams that issue and filtered from arid sand wells.

In 1874 the Baroness Burdet-Coutts offered to spend $125,000 on the water supply of the city, provided that the municipality of Jerusalem undertook to find $2,500 or $3,000 a year necessary for the upkeep. The municipality does not offer.

Street Railways Proposed.

Construction of no fewer than 10 street railways is proposed by the concessionaires. All will start from the Jaffa gate on the western side of the city wall. One will run along the principal commercial quarter and the new Jewish suburbs for a branching northward. It will be another case of Jewish settlements.

A third leading to the north will pass the new gate and running parallel more or less parallel with the wall will turn north

UNCLE SAM IS WORTH THIRTY MILLIONS OF CHILDREN

From the New York Tribune

A new way of looking at the United States has just been discovered at Washington by Miss Julia C. Lathrop. A great deal of thought and energy have been spent upon the effort to get a look at ourselves from the point of view of our natural resources. Men with busy pencils have figured how much coal we discharge up the chimney in gas and remove from the grates and sift on the ash heaps. They have consulted with the geologists and guessed how long it will take to do this with all the black fuel in the bowels of the earth how long it will require to smelt the ores and put them to the service of man in the form of railroads and bridges and buildings. Men have sought an exact knowledge of the quantity of corn and oats and wheat of horses and cattle, and of all the other products which the farmer raises because they wish to know how to speculate on the produce exchange or because they wish to get data with which to regulate prices or because they wish to glean something of what we are to be from a knowledge of what we are going to have to eat. Others have stood at the gates of Ellis Island counted the Italian Slavs Jews Englishmen Irishmen Scotchmen Chinese and Japanese and troubled themselves from his angle about the future of the land of Uncle Sam.

The Great Natural Resource.

This was the first which a spirit of the numbers is natural to the people of the United States. But it is the reason that that resource which has more to do with the future of the country than any other has been left until this last. This is the children. Now the pencils have been about the children their numbers their places of abode and their lineage. Recently the National Children's bureau, of which Miss Lathrop is the head, finished a survey of the children of the country based on the last census. The results in some respects will surprise persons living in New York city and the neighborhood who have heard tales of race suicide and congestion and the danger of being swamped by a wave of unassimilated foreigners.

Uncle Sam when he takes a census, endeavors to secure the numbers on a given date although the time occupied in obtaining the data may take months. April 15 was the day in 1910. On that date according to results of the labors of the enumerators in the territory of the United States there were 29,499,138 children under 15 years of age. This number was nearly one-third of his entire family. There was no race suicide here, one would say. What an army coming on to fill the ranks of those who are dropping out! France would rejoice to have such a troop of youth entering her various activities. What potentialities are here for the future of the land!

But are not a great many of these foreigners? asks the anxious Chauvinist or the anti-restrictionist. No! Almost all these children were born on American soil. Only 759,346 or slightly more than one-fifth of them crossed the seas with their parents. The remainder are not the children of the stranger. The various assimilative agencies such as schools playgrounds, settlements and other institutions are therefore working upon those who are citizens of the United States by right of birth.

Of course a great many of the children have foreign born parents. There were 7,225,549 of them who claimed father or mother or both from the shores of the purple Mediterranean or the rugged wilds of the Balkans, or the grassy downs of England and Ireland or the wide stretches of the land of Our Lady of the Snows. But even such a great number actually no more than two and a quarter millions greater than the population of New York city is less than a quarter of the entire country. After deducting the 2,685,707 pickaninnies and dusky youths and maidens below that age of majority 15, to be found in negro homes there still remain 1,731,830, or almost exactly three-fifths whose parents are whites born in this country. The future of this country therefore, is actually in the hands of children to the manor born.

More Boys Than Girls.

How many of these are boys and how many girls? Well, it has been discovered that there are more boys than girls, there being approximately 102 of the former for 100 of the latter. Incidentally it was found that in the ages between 15 and 30 the girls seemed to predominate there being 100 of the latter to slightly less than 100 of the former. The disparity was marked for the twentieth year there being only 94.2 boys to every 100 girls of that age. And this notwithstanding the fact that in no other period under 35 years are the men in the minority. How does this happen? Miss Lathrop, despite her sex has attached her name to a document which contains the following statement: Census age figures are very seriously affected by the women who understate their age and this understatement carries into the age period from 15 to 19 years many women who should be in the older age periods. Among men there is probably no corresponding tendency and hence in the age period 15 to 19 the women outnumber the men though at all other quinquennial age periods below 15 years there are more men than women. This understatement of age means that certain women older than 21 years of age, appear in the statistics as children. Exactly how many such cases there may be it is of course, impossible to say but the number probably does not greatly exceed 167,000.

The country apparently still remains the breeding place for the cities. Despite the marked shift of population from the rural districts to the cities the majority of the children under 15 years of age are to be found in the country villages and on the farms. Not quite one child in five lives in what one would call a big city—that is to say a city of more than 100,000 inhabitants. In the middle Atlantic states, among which are New York New Jersey and Pennsylvania the proportion which being at our door gives us a wrong impression of the situation in the country as a whole. In the Pacific states more than one out of every four children plays on a city street and in New England and the east north central states which would include Ohio Indiana and Illinois a little less than one in four is obliged to seek his pleasure on a vacant lot in the path of an automobile or in some more or less distant park. According to one point of view one will rejoice or feel exceedingly sad at the thought that three-fifths of the youngsters of the land live in distinctly rural districts or villages of less than 2,500 inhabitants. Fewer children are found in the country districts of New England than in any other part of the United States while the largest percentage is found in Kentucky Tennessee Mississippi and Alabama where nearly nine-tenths of the children live in modest villages or isolated homes.

The Negro Children.

More than nine-tenths of the negro children live in the south as perhaps, one would expect to find. The south is still the land of the pickaninny. In eastern and central states, as one also would expect to discover, a great part of the children of foreign birth or foreign parentage, there being more than four-fifths of the whole number in this region. New England is more seriously threatened with a mixed population than any other part of the country. Almost three out of every five children in this part of the United States were either themselves born or had one or both parents who were born in a foreign country. The middle Atlantic states ranked next, with a little more than two out of every five, but in every other section the native children of native parents were in the majority. In this respect Arkansas Louisiana Texas and Oklahoma led the host, with Kentucky Tennessee Alabama Mississippi Minnesota Iowa Missouri North and South Dakota Nebraska and Kansas close up in the van.

The problem therefore as to what this country shall be still rests upon the environment provided for the country child. The bear and most ambitious are drawn into the cities leaving those who need the support of favorable surroundings to shift for themselves. Public schools which shall fit the children for efficiency in agriculture and home making and the organization of one and social and literary clubs are some of the things which still, he needed to give the rising generation the place which it should occupy for the welfare of the land. No more "pickaninny" are needed.

THE EASTER MILLINERY IS ADORNED WITH WINGS, FRUITS AND FLOWERS

Dutch Overskirts a Late and Lasting Style for Cotton Frocks and Woolen Suits; Piped and Bound Edges Popular

NEW YORK, April 25.—April sunshine and Easter Sunday bring forth the styles evolved from the suggestions given by the openings. The bizarre and extreme are seen modified for the uses of the American woman of good taste. After service on Easter Sunday, the true styles, which sweep across the country from coast to coast, and from Winnipeg to the Gulf, are seen upon Fifth avenue.

Many of the new hats are of shiny straw, and in sailor, turban, Watteau plique and linen for dresses and separate cotton skirts, as it is much easier to launder. If carefully hung and pulled out while wet, it is not necessary to iron it at all. The raglan sleeves of the model, and the surplice-closing waists are as simple to make as the skirt, whose practical adornments are the two hip pockets. A hemstitched collar, vest and cuffs give the dainty finishing touches.

Materials for house dresses are as varied in design this year as the materials for other frocks. Gingham is being shown in a variety of new patterns, among them being Roman stripes and many new plaids. Percale has some of the quaint Dolly Varden designs, which makes it attractive and out of the ordinary. The Japanese and English crepes come in a variety of plain colors and a number of designs, besides possessing, like ratine, the same advantage of making ironing unnecessary. Plisse crepes are also attractive for warm weather, as they are as light weight as lawn, can be washed and dried quickly, and in an hour or so are ready again for service.

In my second illustration I have shown a shirt waist and skirt. The model of striped novelty cloth is an unusually up-to-date and conservative skirt for traveling, shopping and out-of-town wear. Concealed in the folds of the lifted pleat are pockets, which are a necessary addition to all the mannish tailor-made skirts. The waist of Habutai silk is a late and fashionable cut, with its long shoulder-line and set-in sleeves.

It has been a number of years since colored shirt waists have had the vogue that they are having this year. They are to be had in the stores, of colored linen, with collars and cuffs of embroidery edging, or with collars and and Louis XVI shapes. There is nothing gayer or more attractive than the dainty shepherdess hats which have been handed down to us on the canvases of the great painter, Watteau, and given his name. They are usually in soft straw, and trimmed with velvet ribbon and brightly-colored flowers in such a way that their sugar-scoop silhouette is not lost. This hat is meant to be worn well over the face, the high French twist of the hair appears to cause this tilt, but a bandeau at the back, covered with ribbon or massed flowers, also holds the hat aloft, while a band of velvet or flowers often extends around the head below the twist, keeping the hat securely in place.

The Louis XVI plaques are being looked at and admired, but many women feel that they are not becoming, and can be worn only with dainty frilled frocks whose accessories correspond with them. This style of a hat with a tailored suit would scarcely be in good taste.

The jaunty all-black hat is the smartest for general wear. Colored hats are both beautiful and chic, but for practical use they lack the distinction of the black hat. There are a few leg-horn hats worn, for this is a straw which is always modish. No matter what straw or what type of hat they are pretty sure to flare abruptly at the side; and in order that it may fit the head comfortably, a bandeau of the straw is fastened to that side. The close-fitting round hat, having a high crown, with or without a straight narrow rim is in vogue. These are trimmed with wings, flowers and fruits, the favorites being grapes and cherries.

Taffeta and moire ribbon, and a shiny satin ribbon with a patent-leather finish, are used extensively in trimming the morning or tallornade hat. Tote de neers is used a great deal on black hats and is very practical for the everyday hat, as the dusky brown goes with almost everything.

The style which most fashion experts believe to be among the smartest for summer wear is the long tunic, or Dutch skirt, very full and worn over a narrow underskirt, which shows about 8 inches below the bottom of the tunic. A most striking suit which I have just seen is on this style of gown. The difference being that the tunic does not quite come together in the back and is therefore more of an apron than a tunic. This apron is of Roman stripes over and underskirt of blue gabardine. The garbantine jacket, of kimono cut has narrow sleeves, and the rounded back drops below the waistline and slants up to a point over the chest, where it is fastened with a single button. This is worn over a moire skirt waistcoat with a large, flaring collar. The striking little hat which was worn with this costume was divided into thirds, with a straight quill standing upright from each third.

For my first illustration this week I have chosen a simple and stylish frock for morning and house wear. The material used is a mottled lavender and white ratine, a fabric which is woven the way of the goods with a rough, piped cord, which gives the whole fabric an uneven surface. This material has widely taken the place of cuffs of the same linen piped in white, with the buttonholes bound in white. Also, the white waists are to be had with piped seams. Binding the front of a waist in scallops is also a striking finish.

Another charming waist had round-lap revers of the doubled white lawn, which opened away from a set-in vestee of the same. The revers were piped with a narrow cording of blue. Attached to the end of the revers at the neck was a collar of pleated lawn which extended straight across the back.

A simple but charming white crepe waist had collars and cuffs of white golfine. Colored golfine also was used for collars and cuffs for white waists.

Mme Simcox is America's Greatest Designer & Creator of Fashion

COPYRIGHT, 1914, by CLARA E. SIMCOX, 535 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK

AN endless variety of charming fashions confront me this Spring. No iron bound rules can describe or apply them. In fact the only dictates, and it admits of a wide interpretation, is that the new costumes be becoming. If possible attract attention than ever is given to the designing of graceful curves and lines is an art which though slowly re-awakened is positively of the first importance in the world of dress. Dress-making in the last decade has been reckoned with as high art. This season instead of trying for a strictly ornamental effect, the latest fashion decrees all for a reproduction of the exquisite pictures by Watteau, the charming modes of La Pompadour, the picturesque charm of Lady Hamilton or a Romney. If you wish to compliment a woman properly on her appearance this season you need only tell her that she looks like a picture.

usually no might find to the conclusion that the quaint loose effects are boon to the woman who has no figure. On the contrary the figure counts for a great deal as in all of the draped models. A perfect fitting foundation is the first requirement, and after that the drapings, apparently most carelessly arranged are unfurled with the extreme precision that the artist knows so well is the price of unstudied grace.

It is to be noted that a most important feature of the new models is the treatment given to the backs. They show even more artistic arrangement than the fronts and this arrangement goes very far towards making or marring not only the costume but the figure. Particularly with the loose effect it is not an easy matter to give a smart back, and there certainly is nothing

ing attractive about a baggy back that gives the appearance of round shoulders. The back while it may be in direct contrast to the set line used in the front nevertheless shows its relationship and is generally an extension of the lines used in front.

In Paris the newest time is long. It reaches almost to the shoe tops and flares at the bottom. And is the new skirts end not far from the shoe tops the tunics reach almost to the hem of the skirt. Many long coats are also seen. These are worn with skirts of the same color or a stripe silk. Several suits made after the model I am showing this week were seen at the Autouff sales. This costume (No. 2) was at once dubbed the "tunic de la tudeciel," in other words, the rainbow skirt,* for the thick silk that is used for the skirt veritably contains every color of the rainbow and a few others to boot. The Roman stripes have never been used so dominantly as in this particular style of skirt for the stripes are in the most vivid colors. The long coat, which has an unusual flare at the bottom, is in the k-shantung style with white. The large patched pockets and revers are in white silk embroidered with a conventional design.

As a sample of what artistic treatment is given to the back of a gown I cannot illustrate a better model than Fig. 2. The back of this skirt with its double apron arrangement is quite unique. The gown is made in cream silk patterned with tiny bunches of flowers in pink and blue and a little

Long sleeves are fashionable and are authorized about the wrists with a band of ribbon or silk. The white chiffon sleeves are very effective with black tulle frills. Very few short sleeves are seen on Worth's creations this season. One black tulle model he has designed has long chiffon sleeves trimmed with ostrich and ruchings of tulle. On the elaborate afternoon frocks when the sleeves are short in under-sleeve of chiffon is most useful and effective. Fig. 3 has this style of sleeve. It is quite loose and will prove the most comfortable and the prettiest style for summer frocks. This little gown is made in white and black tulle, the white tulle patterned with a large polka dot. A brilliant touch of color is introduced in the revers and planning her sporting apparel. A much greater altitude is shown both in the color and cut of one sporting wardrobe than formerly when the enue que non of a garment denoted that it should show by some external hallmark for what particular costume it was designed. Not long ago the woman who did not sport a skirt coat on the golf green or a mink-dyed cut blue serge when off for a visiting cruise told herself to be decidedly out of it. But now the pendulum has swung quite as far in the other direction and

It in cream silk is used for the flounce on the front of the skirt and the tube shaped draping at the back. The belt and collar are in

Both short and long sleeves are used for afternoon frocks. Some of the unmistakable either at a distance or on close examination. It is a thin, flat, flat-tapered suit. It is made of straw and is decorated all over with a large amber buck, the back of which is run in black chiroblum. The ribbon is drawn across the back, the hat terminates in a large flat bow which fills the hiatus and is the focal thing. A bandeau rises the hat to a right angle and a slight bend in the shape gives the hat a sleek look, as if the high bandeau hats with their turning on the outer and under turn so charming for other purposes, are by the nature of their lines unsuitable for cutting away. A hat, however, which neatly approaches perfection for morning purposes is shaped like those worn by the habitat of the Austrian Tyrol. It is constructed of a shade of green tiffet so dark as to appear black in certain lights and of oil masticum green. The crown is cut back, plunging from the crown, and standing out horizontally from the centrally indented bang in two fascicles, one on either side of a both modest and in truth this is a terpidon rather looks as sleek and shiny as the creature after which it is named. Both the deep and the high crowned tabor turbans are in vogue for outing purposes. Some of the new turbans are almost as high as a man's opera hat and similar in shape, but their sides are more concave. The tabor is usually put on in the front

SASHES' ENDS

By Lynette Darcie.

The peacock feather sash may be applied to white washable material and worked in the same or using two or three harmonizing shades on a light tone material or using the natural peacock color.

The other design may be carried out in the same idea.

The beaded ornamentation used on ends of sashes is very attractive. The neck bow and belt have medallions of bright colors and white on dark background.

Basket Stitch

Mrs. S. The stitch used to develop the basket design published March 21 of this paper is known as Portuguese lead work. When completed this stitch makes a most effectively embroidered basket.

To make work the outside uprights or spokes of the basket with Kensington outline, and then lay the other lines representing spokes in long single stitches. The weave of the basket is made by laying three stitches over two brought, leaving a space of three stitches, then three stitches, then a space, continuing over two upright with alternate stitches and spaces until the cross bar of the basket is reached. Now make the same stitches over two spokes again, the one being the upright already used, and proceed to work down these two lines at equal intervals, filling in the three stitches beside the spaces opposite. Continue in this way until the entire basket is woven.

At first the upright stitches will seem slack but when the next row of stitches is taken over them they will be straightened and held in place.

The rim, bottom, cross bar and handle of the basket are worked in solid satin stitch. The rim should be made before the Venetian flowers which are fastened over it.

Collar and Cuff Pattern

Mrs. C. C. A. The only patterns we have are those published each week

Neither perforated nor transfer patterns are sold. All designs are drawn so that they can be transferred directly from the paper by means of an impression sheet.

The only way to secure the patterns is to purchase the issues of the paper. Collar and cuff sets will be among the patterns published during the year.

VIOLET PERFUME

It is fortunate that it takes only about three drops of essence of violet to scent a bottle of perfume, since drop of the essence means the scent of one thousand violets.

This pure perfume is of course blended with chemicals to strengthen odor, but even then it is possible to distinguish the real violet perfume from the heavier artificial flower scents on the market.

AN endless variety of charming fashions confront one this Spring. No iron bound rules can describe or apply them. In fact the only dictates, and it admits of a wide interpretation, is that the new costumes be becoming. If possible, greater attention than ever is given to the designing of graceful curves and to an art which, though slowly recognized, is positively of the first importance in the world of dress. Dressing in the last decade has been reckoned with as high art. This season instead of trying for a strictly Oriental effect, the latest fashion degrades it for a reproduction of the exquisite pictures by Watteau, the charming odes of La Pompadour, the picturesque charm of Lady Hamilton or a summer. If you wish to compliment woman properly on her appearance in season you need only tell her that she "looks like a picture."

Usually one might jump to the conclusion that the quaint loose effects are born to the woman who has no figure. On the contrary, the figure counts for a great deal, as in all of the new models a perfect fitting foundation is the first requirement, and after that the drapings, apparently most recklessly arranged, are managed with extreme precision that the artist owns so well is the price of unstudied ease.

It is to be noted that a most important feature of the new models is the treatment given to the backs. Particularly with the loose effect it is not an easy matter to give a good back, and there certainly is nothing attractive about a baggy back that gives the appearance of round shoulders. The back, while it may be in direct contrast to the scheme used in the front, nevertheless shows its relationship and is generally an extension of the lines used in front.

In Paris the newest tunic is long. It reaches almost to the shoe tops and flares at the bottom. And as the new skirts end not far from the shoe tops the tunics reach almost to the hem of the skirt. Many long coats are also seen. These are worn with skirts of the same color or a stripe silk. Several suits made after the model I am showing this week were seen at the Auteuil races. This costume (Fig. 1) was at once dubbed the "tipe de l'arc de ciel," in other words, "the rainbow skirt," for the thick silk that is used for the skirt veritably contains every color of the rainbow and a few others to boot. The Roman stripes have never been used so daringly as in this particular style of suit, for the stripes are in the most vivid colors. The long coat, which has an unusual flare at the bottom, is in black charmeuse, lined with white. The large patched pockets and revers are in white silk embroidered with a conventional design.

As a sample of what artistic treatment is given to the back of a gown I cannot illustrate a better model than Fig. 2. The back of this skirt with its double apron arrangement is quite unique. The gown is made in cream silk patterned with tiny bunches of flowers in pink and blue and a little spray of foliage. Plain cream silk is used for the dounce on the front of the skirt and the tunic shaped draping at the back. The belt and collar are in a darker blue silk. The long sleeve is effectively used in this gown. It fits closely to the arm, and is finished with a frill of the plain silk over the hand.

Both short and long sleeves are used for afternoon frocks. Some of the long sleeves are transparent and are gathered in about the wrists with a band of ribbon or silk. The white chiffon sleeves are very effective with black taffeta frocks. Very few short sleeves are seen on Worth's creations this season. One black taffeta model he has designed has long chiffon sleeves, trimmed with ostrich and ruchings of taffeta. On the elaborate afternoon frocks when the sleeves are short an undersleeve of chiffon is most graceful and effective. Fig. 3 has this style of sleeve. It is quite loose and will prove the most comfortable and prettiest style for summer frocks. This little gown is made in white and black taffeta, the white fabric patterned with a large polka dot. A brilliant touch of color is introduced in the revers and planning her sporting apparel. A much greater latitude is shown both in the color and cut of one's sporting wardrobe than formerly when the sine qua non of a garment demanded that it should show by some external hallmark for what particular pastime it was designed. Not long ago the woman who did not sport a scarlet coat on the golf green or a nautically cut blue serge when off for a yachting cruise felt herself to be decidedly out of it. But now the pendulum has swung quite as far in the other direction and unmistakable cachet and can be worn on any occasion in conjunction with a trim tailored suit. It is in black glaze straw and is decorated in front with a large amber buckle, through which is run a black cire ribbon. The ribbon is drawn across the sides of the hat and terminates in a large, flat bow which fills the hiatus under the back brim. A bandeau raises the hat to a smart angle, and a slight bend in the shape gives the hat at the back a poke effect. The high bandeau hats, with the trimming on the outer and under brim, so charming for other purposes are by the nature of their lines impracticable for outing wear. A hat, however, which neatly approaches perfection for motoring purposes is shaped like those worn by the habitat of the Austrian Tyrol. It is constructed of a shade of green taffeta so dark as to appear black in certain lights and called "mysterious green." The tiny brim curls back abruptly from the ear tips and standing out horizontally from the centrally indented brim are two rosettes, one on either side of oilcloth ribbon, or eelgrass ribbon, as some modistes name it. In truth, this waterproof ribbon looks as sleek and shiny as the creature after which it is named. Both the deep and the high crowned taller turbans are in vogue for outing purposes. Some of the new turbans are almost as high as a man's opera hat and similar in shape, but their sides are more concave. The trimming is usually put on in the front at a forward tilting angle.

Some of the high crowns are encircled with a collar of straw. One fetching model is developed in mahogany

Their sleeves, however, may be of every variety, as indeed may their collars. One sees the tunic set in and kimono sleeve with however a slight preference for the last as it slips on more easily. These coats are usually in three quarter length, and among the newer models one sees an occasional ional bell shape like the one Miss Eleanor Wilson has just bought for her trousseau and which was selected by her fiancé, Secretary McAdoo.

The best all-round outing ulster I've seen ideal for either stumper wear or motor is of this same bell shape flaring to a width of four yards at the hem which comes about six inches above the ankle and the garment ripples down from the narrow shoulders, with their set in sleeves in a comfortably engaging fashion. The material is a checked worsted in two shades of tortoise brown. The Gladstone collar is of tangerine cotton velours, as are the very deep cuffs and the geometric tabs which button the coat over to the left side front.

In this new devotion to plaids it is a quaint fancy if one can lay any claim to Scotch blood to follow the example of our pretty princess, Christine Macdonald, and adopt for one's outing costume the plaid of one's clan. Miss Macdonald, who is a great outdoors woman, has had a smart suit made for her of the Macdonald plaid. The skirt is laid in the traditional kilt, it held up to cover the knees and cinched by little Scotch bonnet with a quill as worn in a rakish angle on her head.

From England comes our best suggestions for sporting equipment for the English woman are notoriously devoted to athletics of every description, so that the English influence on outdoor clothing is not one to be disregarded for it is imbued with much of the national sound common sense. The English woman's sport clothes are modeled on the lines of the clothing used by her men folk, but modified to suit the exigencies of her sex. The British ladies, moreover, in imitating the best of the men, and the French, have a certain amount of discretion in their wearing, which does the credit of them.

The skirts of the English outdoor suits are very short and of a fullness around the hem which would make the present day French or even American outdoor suit with its disarray. But they are built for the most outdoors for the tramping, rolling and tennis which is so great a part of country life at this season of the year. The skirt is cut in a full, but not a full, plenty of cut, but no matter what waistband which is in purple. Pique silk with a design of flowers in vivid contrast coloring.

A very quaint purple bodice tops a fishwife draped in Fig. 4. For a slender figure this is a delightful little frock. In the original it was made in white. The only trimming is on the puffed collar which is outlined in purple and blue and which is tied around the waist with a dark blue sash which spreads out in a large double looped bow at the back. The chemise is of the finest white tulle exquisitely smocked round the neck and at edge of the elbow sleeves.

Togs For the Outdoor Woman
The month of April is the month when the summer girl is most busy

we seem—to paraphrase the old saying—to wish to be all things in all clothes and have our apparel as little indicative of what we are about as possible, even to the point of wearing a motor bonnet that spelled motor.

For that very reason I have this season both designed and imported quite a number of chic little chapeaux which are close fitting enough to take care of the hair in motoring and other pastimes when the confure is at the mercy of the wind and yet which do not bear the stamp of "officialdom" as it were. One of my models of this sort was illustrated in a recent article, and another smart little chapeau is depicted in Fig. 6. This little hat, although severely plain in effect, has an

Millan straw with the collar of a rougher straw called "permut" in a brighter, more lively shade. The sole ornament beside the collar is a sprig of a leaf of knife pointed black moire which flutters delicately above the light cream narrow brim from the middle of the hat in front.

The Top Coat
The essential requirement of the top coat for motoring is that it shall be commodious enough to slip on over the froiled and ruffled costumes of the day without crushing the gown beneath. Thus only may one emerge in dignified array as a sure thing. Fortunately from the present day chapeaux of the envelope coat. Such a thing, a light tweed terry whipcord and for the

Splendor of Old Seville. In a Newsboys' Home

Dressed in Costly Robes Like Cardinals and High Dignitaries of Church, 120
Waifs Observe Sacred Day as They Do in European Cathedrals

It's a long way from the wonderful Cathedral of Seville in Spain to the cobblestone streets of an American city, yet there is one day in the year when Cardinal in one city and waif in the other, rank side by side in appearance and if anything the waif outranks the Cardinal for he has a childish face to help when he does his clothes.

How 120 waifs of an American city came to burst forth in regal splendor is a story the beginning of which dates back to the time when a priest yearning to help the poor of his city founded a newsboys' home.
His home was not limited to newsboys, but as nearly all of the homeless youth of the streets sell newspapers at some time in their career, the home was called the newsboys' home. The priest went about the city gathering up the unfortunate youngsters to give them a chance in life. Rich men contributed to the institution and finally he erected a big brick structure, the murdered gangster. It is from the poor and homeless that the boys who take part in one of the most remarkable sacred feasts in America are gathered.

All the year around the boys live at the home, earning what they can and engaging in studies when not at work. Four teachers from a university come to them every day and give lessons.

But it is on Holy Thursday each year that the boys shine forth in all their glory. There are other times of the year when their hearts are made glad but on Holy Thursday they are given an opportunity to engage in the most sacred rite in the Roman Catholic Church, when they form a procession and escort Father Dunne as he carries the Blessed Sacrament to the repository, thus typifying the entering into agony of Christ after the last supper.

FABRIC IMPORTED FOR MAKING ROBES.

Resplendent in satins and silks,

carrying flowers which they strew on the floor typifying the entrance of Christ into Jerusalem when palms were strewed for his beast to tread upon.

Then come the court of flower boys in pink, twenty-four in number, at each end, who also scatter flowers as they go. Then come boys dressed as cardinals with long trains in green and purple embroidered with passion flowers, such as are believed to have sprung from the foot of the cross.

Among the attendants are two little fellows wearing red velvet tun-ics, braided with gold tulle, and short white satin knickerbockers.

Their short, sturdy underpinnings are incased in white silk stockings and white satin slippers. Upon their heads jauntily perched Rubens hats of red velvet and ermine fur are beautiful in its markings.

Another courtier wears a white brocade costume with train, embellished with great pink flowers, while taries and their attend-

tion of the seises of Seville.

which in his honor was called Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home.

Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home
is situated just west of the wholesale and factory district in St.
Louis. Walk in any direction from the place for a few minutes and you will come to a corner where there has been a killing. Around the home are the gangster's hangouts.

In the direction of the Mississippi River can be found the homes of some of the Bottom's gangsters. Going for a walk through his district one day Father Dunne found a boy fighting a bigger boy. The younger clearly was getting the worst of the deal but he was pluckily fighting on.

"That fellow has good stuff in him," said Father Dunne.

He asked the boy his name. The name sounded familiar. The boy noticed that the priest recognized the name and quickly spoke up.

"Yep, my dad is the one they killed down at the saloon Thursday."

"Where's your mother?" asked Father Dunne.

"She's in the Workhouse."

"Better come along with me," said the priest and the boy became one of the regular boarders at Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home.
The residents of the home have been recruited much as the son of embroidered with gold and set with diamonds, these boys go through the ceremony much as it is carried on at the Vatican of Rome and at the Cathedral of Seville. The boy's procession is held within the halls of their home and all the wonderful display is unseen by the crowds in the city. In fact it takes place almost unknown to the outside world.

It is a religious rite and not for the eyes of the curious.

It is estimated that the robes and equipment of the boys has cost $50,000. The money was all contributed by a man who has made other gifts to the home and who wants to impress the boys with things grand and beautiful.

At the head of the procession marches a boy carrying a cross of pure white studded with diamonds.
The boy is dressed in silvery white with diamonds and gold embroidery his garments. The Byzantine cross he carries cost $1,000. Four years ago the procession in holy robes was first introduced. The boy who carried the cross for three years was absent this year because he is now a plumber and is working at his trade. A younger boy has risen to the position of cross bearer.

Next to him come two acolytes in red, typifying joy in the church.
Then come the boys in silvery dress

the pages who followed in his wake, ever watchful that the great white train lay straight, were the acme of sartorial elegance and extravagance.

Boys in blue and white in honor of the Blessed Virgin, guards of honor and seises boys have their positions in the procession.

Nowhere else in the world, except in Seville, do they have seises.
At the Cathedral of Seville, these seises dance before the Blessed Sacrament as they march, striking canebats to keep time to their dance. The practice has been for-bidden by Papal decree, but the authorities of the Cathedral keep up the custom.

Not until a year ago did the seises ever dance outside of Seville.
Then two of them were taken to Madrid, lent by the Cathedral of Seville. When it was heard by friends of the newsboys that the seises were at Madrid a demand was made that they be brought to America. Exact patterns of the dress were sent to Father Dunne and goods were imported from Europe. All the work on the venture was made at the Newsboys' Home by women caretakers.

The dress consists of black velvet tunics slashed to show the real lace blouses beneath and black velvet trousers, buckled at the knees and met by black silk pumps with high heels and buckles studded with brilliant stones for the feet. Capes of black velvet hang from their shoulders.

The capes are embroidered in pink, lined with white satin.
On their heads they wear great black clamboroughs decorated with pink and black ostrich plumes; more beautiful and costly than plumes worn by the most wealthy society women.

In the center of the parade marches Father Dunne, who officiates at the ceremony. Four boys bearing a canopy hold it over his head.

SINGING OF STREET LADS WONDERFUL

The boys march down the wonderfully carpeted hall to the stairs leading to their sleeping wards.
Then they double back and march to the repository where the Blessed Sacrament is deposited.

The singing of the boys of the street is wonderful. They do not look like the boys who only the night before had been crying papers or working in the offices. In their sacred robes they look like cherubs. Those who do not carry lanterns, candles, wands and the cross, march with their hands together in an attitude of piety.

A few visitors were present to see them this year, but the boys could not have marched better had they been performing for a million. They were not marching to be seen. The performance was for itself alone.

While the parade was Catholic in its meaning, Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home is not a retreat for Catholic boys. All are welcome. Those who took part in the celebration of that sacred feast were not asked if their parents had taught them to be Catholic, Protestant, Greek Catholic or Jew. They were not asked if their parents had had any religious faith. In fact, many of the boys had come to the home without any religious teaching. Many of them had come without any instruction as to how they should behave.

After mass in their chapel they are told of the little things of life by Father Dunne. How to be good men is one of his themes. He talks to them not as a priest talks to them so much, but more as a father.
From the pulpit in their little chapel he tells them to wash their ears and be clean, as cleanliness is akin to godliness. He tells them to be faithful workers for their employers.

Filled with the spirit of his teaching it is no wonder that the boys are able to put on a look of piety
as they march in the holy pageant singing praises to the crucified Savior and mourning his agony, which he is about to suffer, according to the historical setting of the ceremony.

The observance of Holy Thursday dates from ancient times. It was first observed in Rome. During the Middle Ages the custom of washing of the feet was observed by the rich and powerful as symbolic of the washing of the feet of the apostles by Christ. The day also is known as Maundy Thursday from the Latin mandatum, meaning commandment. It comes from Christ's statement just before washing his disciples' feet, "A new commandment I give unto you."

Father Dunne founded the Newsboys' Home February 6, 1896. He became interested in work for the newsboys through a newsboy whom he had aided while he was assistant pastor at another church.

He raised the money from all classes of people without regard to their religious belief, asking them to contribute for the sake of the boys.
Since the opening of the home, he has had 2,000 boys under his charge.
They range in ages from 7 to 17 years old. Among those who lived in his home and were rescued from the streets by Father Dunne are twenty who are now employed in banks. Three are preparing themselves for the priesthood and several are ready to be graduated from medical and law schools.

It is the personality of Father Dunne which governs the home. He allows them to live with him under as little restraint as possible.
He has no system. A woman of Protestant belief from Houston,
Tex., recently came to Father
Dunne's home to study his system.
He told her he had no system, and although she remained at the home

three weeks endeavoring to learn how he made good men out of the street waifs she gave it up, saying that he had no system, and the only way she could produce his work was through getting some one like Father Dunne at the head of the institution she wished to establish.

Every Sunday Father Dunne calls the young boys to him and gives them a quarter for spending money which they can use in going to picture shows and other places of amusement.

A visitor at Father Dunne's home recently saw a gentlemanly little fellow in the swimming pool which is maintained at the home. When the visitor questioned the lad he replied politely in the best of English.

"That's not a waif," the visitor said afterward to Father Dunne.
The priest replied that the boy was the son of a noted gangster and had been rescued from the streets after the gangster had been killed.

PLAIN KNIFE AND FORK FOR $52

A record price for a plate was brought at the Dr. C. A. Quincy Norton antique lamp sale at the Merwin Galleries; $42.50 was paid for a pale blue ironstone china plate with a little landscape in the center, a plate with no value as such, but sold as a Lincoln relic.
The second record breaker was an old knife and fork, steel with bone handles, which started at $20 and went to $52.50, the selling point.

The plate was used by Lincoln in his home in Springfield, Ill., in 1837 and the knife and fork at the same time. A tall tin pedestal lamp, with a double whale oil burner and acorn-shaped oil font, with a tall standard and panlike base, used by Lincoln in his law office at Springfield, brought $160, and an old chair of rather pretty shape with rush bottom brought the same price. They all went to a collector giving the buying name of James Quincy, who was one of the largest buyers at the sale, buying practically all the most important pieces.

These four relics of the martyred President were taken by Dr. Norton, with other relics from the Lincoln Log Cabin, which was exhibited in New York in 1866, in lieu of fees which were to have been paid him for lecturing at the cabin.

Dr. Norton, being a descendant of the famous old New England Quincy family, from which he took one of his names, came into possession of some of his most interesting pieces through this connection.
One of those which went yesterday to James for $56, was a pair of brass mantel lamps, a wedding present to John Hancock upon his marriage of Dorothy Quincy by the father of the bride.

On the base of one lamp is engraved an old English "H", and on the other a "Q". They were used to light the bed chamber of Lafayette when he visited Boston and slept in the Hancock mansion on Beacon Hill. A 7-inch lard oil tin lamp, one of a pair with two-broad wicks, used by Noah Webster in compiling his dictionary, and from his old home at Amherst, Mass., went to the same buyer for $52.50.
A Sheffield plated candlestick from the home of Gen. Henry Whipple, Kittery, Me., date 1750, went to James for $61.

One of the high prices of the sale was $41 given by V. M. Hillier for an English double lens pewter bull's-eye lamp, with four burners, with a heavy bull's-eye lens on either side, date 1760. An old pewter and glass horological lamp, with a cup-like wick support, handle, tall standard, and pan-like base, date about 1810, one of the oldest specimens in the collection, went to the same buyer for $22.50.

A lamp used by Harriet Beecher Stowe in writing "Uncle Tom's Cabin," presented to Dr. Norton by Dr. C. E. Stowe her husband with a small wooden deed box covered with red pantaloons studded with brass nails both went to James for $71. A beautiful old brass marine candlestick captured by the United States steamship Constitution, from the British ship Guerriere, in the War of 1812 bearing the British mark and the name of the conquering vessel was one of the interesting pieces of the sale and sold for $36.
A china candlestick from the confederate "White House," in 1863 went to a Milwaukee Museum for $8.

A copper tinder box containing flint and steel from Plymouth, England, went to buyer for $26, and a tall copper dark lantern, used on the United States steamship Enterprise in 1812 brought $112. A pater and oil lamp from the home of Robert E. Lee, Arlington, Va., acquired in 1862, went to James for $20, and Welch paid $3.50 for a pewter oil lamp used by John C.

Calhoun and bought from a son of a former slave.

A box of lococo matches went to James for $2; an adjustable and Betty lamp with a sand loaded base brought from England in 1830 by the father of Col. Edwin Norton, went to him for $20, and an
"Ipswich" Betty lamp for $14.50.
The sale was completed in the two sessions, afternoon and evening, and brought $3,600.

Slang Follows the Flag.

It is a curious fact, noted in a cablegram to the Philadelphia Record, that the Stars and Stripes are more in evidence in the leading thoroughfares of Rome than the flag of any other nationality. This was not so a few years ago, and is an evidence of the development of modern travel in which America takes the lead of the world. Half a dozen of the leading hostellers continually fly the American flag during the busy months of the year, and two or three American tourist agencies do likewise. Enterprising art dealers and general stores are now following suit, because they find it pays them to do so. The American is credited with being the richest visitor, not excepting the Englishman, and the Roman caddy is gradually acquiring a stock of transatlantic vernacular which is apt to surprise the visitor. "Nothin' doin'," "Yes, honest," "Do you get me?" are among the recent additions to the street vendor's stock of American-English.

Jefferson and the Gods.

Before Monticello, the Virginia home of Thomas Jefferson, became the property of Mr. Levy it had passed through various changes of fortune and owners. Several old necrotes lived on the place, presumably caretakers, and when grandchildren and great-grandchildren of slaves owned by Mr. Jefferson, they had as much pride in their birthright as any of Mr. Jefferson's descendants and showed the place with great satisfaction to visitors. They were humbly grateful for a few pennies as their reward.

On one occasion, while showing some strangers over the grounds, one of the old white-haired darkeys pointed with great pride to the marble statues. "Dis here, seh, is Mrs.
Venous, and dis here is Miss Ceres her daughter. Des one ladies Marse Jefferson met when he was a travel-in' over dar in Paris."

Looks Too Often.

Angry Purchaser—didn't you tell me that you had as many as two eggs in one day from those eight hens you sold me?

Poultry Raiser—Yes, ma'am. I Angry Purchaser—Then, why is it that I am never able to get more than two eggs from them and sometimes not so many in one day?

Poultry Raiser—I don't know, ma'am, unless it's because you look for eggs too often. Now, if you will look for them only once a week, I feel positive that you will get just as many eggs in one day as I did.

WOMAN, "The Friend In Need of the Horse"

MURILLO PORTRAIT.

1914 by STRAUS

While men are becoming less and less efficient in the handling of horses, because of the rise of such mechanical conveniences as the automobile and street car, old Dobbin is being supplanted by a new champion in woman.

With the use of modern transportation facilities the horse has been left the attention of men of the cities. But racing has declined with the laws against betting. Where old racing meets are still held the crowds are not what they used to be. Men are interested in what they have their money invested in. When they cannot put up their money on a horse they forget the horse.

Woman is more sentimental. She is turning to the horse as the champion of the horse, and in every line of horsemanship is becoming more and more expert.

If it were not for women there would be no more horse shows. It is made popular by women on the sidelines cheering the contestants. Other women take part in the sport themselves. Today there are women hunters, women riders and women drivers. When one goes

A woman who fails to obey the ordinary rules of riding will look ungainly and will have difficulty in controlling her horse. There are many staid old horses which do not resent ignorance of horsemanship on the part of their rider. But the high spirited horse recognizes the novice the minute she mounts and if the animal has not an amount of politeness in his nature he is likely to toss his foolish rider to the ground or else behave in such a manner as to destroy the joy of riding.

A military horse, when has been trained by soldiers for a great length of time, must always be mounted from the left, so he will refuse to allow a rider to mount from the right. In the army every

While men are becoming less and less efficient in the handling of horses because of the rise of such mechanical conveyances as the automobile and street car, old Dobbin has found a new champion in woman.

With the rise of modern transportation facilities the race horse still held the attention of men of the cities. But racing has declined with the laws against betting. Where big racing meets are still held the crowds are not near what they used to be. Men are interested most in what they have their money invested in. When they cannot put up their money on a horse they forget the horse.

Woman is more sentimental. She is forging to the front as the champion of the horse, and in every line of horsemanship is becoming more and more perfect.

If it were not for women there would be no more horse shows. Polo is played by women on the side lines. The Continental. Other women take part in the sport themselves. Today there are women hunters, women riders and women drivers. When one goes the horse shows, which had its origin in the West, has spread all over America and to Europe. In England its introduction aroused the ire of the men and she had the King issue a order restricting the use of the cross saddle.

Women should ride with a side saddle and not astride. The King of England backed up his statement with opinions of physicians who declared it is harmful for women to ride astride because of their physical construction and because it interferes with their maternal functions.

Others simply declare that it is undignified and unbecomingly for women to ride astride. They believe that an artistic pose on a horse can be obtained only by riding with a side saddle.

But with all the objections the cross saddle has added to the popularity of women for horseback riding. The majority of women believe it is easier to ride astride.

At the horse shows women have eclipsed the men. Often the good appearance of the driver has more to do with making a successful show than the appearance of the horse. Women are more gentle with their horses than men. They have gained themselves to sit more carefully with greater ease than

men. They do not show by their posture when riding at a horse show that they are thinking about their appearance. Men often do. That has had much to do with the elimination of man from the show ring to such a large extent.

men. They do not show by their posture when riding at a horse show that they are thinking about their appearance. Men often do. That has had much to do with the elimination of man from the show ring to such a large extent.

In cross country riding and driving the horse is championed again by the woman. The city men rarely bother about driving a horse. He wants an automobile.

The horse is man's oldest servant, unless the dog ante-dates him. There is no record of the first man to use the horse. It is supposed that the horse first was domesticated in Asia. There are no wild horses in any country except Asia, except as such horses have been imported to a new country and there left their ranches and formed wild herds. The bronchos of the West are not wild horses originally. Many of the wild horses of the plains have marks of thoroughbreds. There are many magnificent horses in the wild herds. They have been domesticated with ease. The same is true of the horse of South America.

XENOPHON WRITES ON HORSEMANSHIP

Among the oldest extended writings about the horse is Xenophon's essays on horsemanship, which were written more than twenty-five hundred years ago in Greek. Xenophon's writings show the horse had long been domesticated then and was used by man as a matter of course. The horse trader existed in those days and there were men of that period who would not hesitate to saddle in a horse trade.

Xenophon's rules for the care of a horse have come down to us through the centuries, and horse savants of today know little more than he did.

Xenophon advises Greeks buying horses to be careful to inspect the feet to guard against being imposed upon by having horses with inferior feet sold to them. The hoof should be high enough so that the soft part of the foot will be raised above the ground. The horse with the soft part touching the ground will become lame. When a horse has a high hoof, providing for a hollow space, it will make a resonating sound like a cymbal as it gallops. When the hoof is badly formed there will be no ring of the hoof, but they will come to the ground with a thud like an over-ripe watermelon.

The sound of the hoof on a hard road is familiar to all. It cannot be imitated although something similar to the sound of the horse's hoofs has been produced for use on the back of the stage.

After the hoofs, Xenophon instructs to look to the legs. The fetlocks should be high and the ankle bones should be like a horse is to be used on rough roads. A low ankle means that the horse is likely to be bruised.

The legs should be big bone and not fat.

The neck should rise like a cock's and not droop like a turkey's. The throat, the grace of the neck and the horse's head high where it can see the road ahead. Since the days of Xenophon there have been many changes in styles and fads, but the fashions of horsemanship have changed but little. The best rider is the one who controls his mount best, and he can best do so by conforming to certain rules and forms in riding.

A woman rider who fails to obey the ordinary rules of riding will look ungraceful and will have difficulty in controlling her horse. There are many staid old horses which do not resent ignorance of horsemanship on the part of their rider. But the high spirited horse recognizes the novice the minute she mounts and if the animal has not an unusual amount of politeness in his makeup he is likely to toss his foolish rider to the ground or else behave in such a manner as to destroy the joy of riding.

A military horse, which has been handled by soldiers for a great length of time, must always be mounted from the left, as he will refuse to allow a rider to mount from the right. In the army everything is done in a certain way. From time immemorial it has been the rule for a cavalrman to put his left foot in the stirrup and use the right foot for the greater effort required in crossing the horse.

An army horse will shy away if one attempts to mount any other way. If the horse is gentle enough to submit to a right side mount it will have little respect for the rider after she gets on and may cause trouble later.

A horse must know the rider is mistress of the situation. The rider who fails to impress the horse with her ability must take the consequences.

Once in the saddle the rider should stay in rhythm with the action of the horse. That not only looks well, but saves the rider and horse from unnecessary exertion and fatigue. The body should be seated in the saddle. For a woman riding on a side saddle the right leg should be kept straight forward and the right knee should be pressed down and pull back on the right rein. The right leg from the knee down should be kept close, but not rigid, against the saddle flap and should be nearly vertical, neither thrust forward nor sideways nor twisted back. The right leg should not touch the left leg.

If the right leg is kept in position the right shoulder will not sag down or flop up, giving an unbalanced look to the rider.
